Psychiatrists Quizzing 'Son Of Sam'

SAM SPOTTER: Cacilia Davis holds her dog, Snowball, in her apartment in New York's Borough of Brooklyn Thursday. At a news conference, New York Police Commissioner Michael Codd mentioned her as one of two volunteers who had supplied police with information that led to arrest of David Berkowitz as the suspected "Son of Sam," slayer. Police Still Baffled By His Motive

By HENRIETTA LEITH
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Psychiatrists today begin quizzing a chubby postal clerk who reportedly has told police he killed six young people and wounded seven on the command of a 6,000-year-old voice named "Sam" who spoke through a dog.

David Berkowitz, 24, former auxiliary policeman and security guard, is not in a jail cell but in a heavily guarded room in the mental ward at Kings County Hospital in Brooklyn. He was ordered there by a judge who said:

"I am of the opinion that the defendant may be incapacitated."

Judge Richard Brown of Brooklyn Criminal Court ordered the psychiatric tests Thursday as the suspect stood before him, saying nothing but "yes" when asked if his name was David Berkowitz. The halfsmile that has flickered across his lips since his arrest reappeared.

Friends of Berkowitz say he had undergone a drastic personality transformation during his Army service in Korea by taking LSD. The Daily News reports today that this transformation was obvious in letters written to the unnamed friends.

"He's amazing," the detective said. "He seems to have total recall, correcting us on minor details here and there."

Police said Berkowitz also was able to answer questions about a letter left at the scene of a double murder last April 17. The note's contents had never been made public, but Berkowitz knew the letter was signed "The Monster" and had referred to "The Chubby Belethom."

But police are still baffled at the motive for murder.

Although Berkowitz was quoted as persistently saying "I was commanded" when asked about each of the killings, he variously described his master as "a man who lived 6,000 years ago," the devil, or a Yonkers neighbor, Sam Carr.

"I got the messages through his dog," Berkowitz was quoted as saying. "He told me to kill."

Carr, 64, said he had told police last April that Berkowitz had shot his dog in the leg and more recently had told police he thought his neighbor might be the .44-caliber killer.

Carr said the shooting of the dog plus Berkowitz' likeness to one of the police sketches of the killer gave him a "gut feeling" Berkowitz was the man.

The terror that gripped sections of Queens and the Bronx for a year has spread to Brooklyn on July 11 after Robert Viatante and Stacy Moskowitz, both 20 and out on their first date together, were shot in the head as they sat in a car.

Miss Moskowitz was buried last week. Viatante lost an eye and possibly the sight in the other.

Late Thursday, according to a source close to the case, attorneys for Viatante and his father moved in Brooklyn Supreme Court to sue Berkowitz for $10 million damages.

The source said summonses were served on Berkowitz at the Department of Correction and Kings County Hospital. Ambler was taped to the door of his Yonkers apartment.

Although Berkowitz has no known financial resources, the Violantes reportedly are hoping to collect the damages from any future money the alleged killer might make from book, television and movie rights.

Brooklyn Dist. Atty. Eugene Gold said he hoped a grand jury would indict Berkowitz in the Moskowitz slaying and the assault on Viatante not later than

WAS THIS MAN SAM? Sixty-four-year-old Sam Carr poses with his dog Harvey in New York, Thursday. Carr, a neighbor of the man arrested by police as a suspect in the .44-caliber killings, said he twice told police that he believed the suspect, David Berkowitz, was the widely sought killer. Carr said that Berkowitz shot and wounded his dog. The New York Post said Berkowitz told police that the name Sam in the killer's nickname "Son of Sam," was Sam Carr. (AP Wirephoto)

SOLD GUN: Billy Wheeler, manager of pawn shop in northwest Houston, Thursday said he sold the gun supposedly involved in the shootings by New York's "Son of Sam." Wheeler says federal agents picked up a copy of the sales record on the 1977 gun purchase. He told the agents he did not remember anything about the purchaser. Federal agents said the gun was purchased by Billy Dan Parker of Houston. (AP Wirephoto)

Proud Aged Shun Utility Bill Money

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — "They are very, very proud people. They're just saying 'We don't want your help, period,'" signed David Wigen.

He was referring to thousands of elderly poor in Michigan who are rejecting federal money to help pay their utility bills, while the ineligible clamor for it.

"It's strange, ironic and comical all at the same time," Wigen said Thursday.

He's administering the state's $13.3 million share of a nationwide program intended to ease the burden of soaring heating costs for the poor.

State officials decided the elderly were being hit hardest and offered them help under the federal government's $200 million Home Heating Assistance program.

But since the program was announced a month ago, only about 43,000 persons 65 or older have applied for aid. That's despite treasury and welfare records that show about 160,000 are eligible.

Wigen estimates that by the Monday deadline, only about 70,000 eligible elderly will have applied. That's far short of his original estimates that 150,000 to 200,000 would get money.

But meanwhile, about 90,000 people have been turned down.

Sylvia Porter Starts Series On Retirement

Did you know that 25 per cent of all retired people live in poverty? A shocking statistic no one wants to join. What can you do today to build a more golden tomorrow? Sylvia Porter, in a six-part series beginning today on the markets page, tells what steps you need to take now to build an adequate nest egg for later years. She details special money plans for young and old, singles and couples, the salaried and the self-employed. Even if you're in your twenties, it's later than you think for building a better retirement.

Benton Pay Board Should Be Abolished

Benton township voters decide next Tuesday whether to retain or abolish a compensation commission that would set pay of salaried township officials. If precedent counts, they had better abolish the commission. Otherwise, township taxpayers will be paying sky-high salaries in a hurry. Both state and federal experience prove such commissions are simply a device that makes it easier for elective officials to raid the public till.

This very year Congress used this artifice to push its members into the top one-half of one per cent of U.S. incomes, counting fringes. The Washington lawmakers got a $12,400 pay hike, raising their annual salaries from $44,600 to $57,000. That's obscene when you consider that millions of American families don't even make the amount of the raise.

A "quadrennial commission" of so-called "impartial" businessmen, labor leaders and others made the congressional pay hike recommendations. Congress could have rejected the increase. But it voted not to. What else?

Last year, the Michigan State Officers Compensation Commission (SOCC) gave members of the

Knee Jerkers Wrong Again

How large a role did hunger play in the looting which hit New York City when the lights went out in mid-July? Brooklyn District Attorney Eugene Gold has produced some interesting facts to rebut the hunger argument.

Of the first 176 individuals indicted (out of 1,000 arrested in Brooklyn), 48 percent had fulltime jobs, 41 percent were in paid antipoverty or training programs and the remaining 11 percent either were on welfare or had no discernible income.

The other side of the coin was the type of business broken into and looted. Six were grocery stores, but 39 were furniture stores, 20 drugstores, 17 jewelry stores and 10 clothing stores.

In Brooklyn, at least, the knee-jerk reaction blaming starvation for a night of lawlessness didn't pan out. Not until the citizens of Brooklyn have some very strange appetites.

Harder To Restore Than To Kill Incentives

When a moderately conservative government came to power in Sweden last fall on the promise of reducing the high tax rates and welfare state burdens built up over the years by the Social Democrats, the victors had

Michigan Legislature a 26 per cent increase in pay. Annual salaries for legislators were boosted over a two-year span from $19,000 to $24,000. In addition, SOCC boosted lawmakers' vouchered expense accounts by $1,100 a year in the same time span—from $3,500 to $4,600.

The pay commission members don't need to be prodded to give whopping pay boosts to elective officials. They're doing just what comes naturally. They're appointed by politicians, and, usually, they have something they want to get from politicians. They are simply acting a role in a charade designed to hoodwink the public into believing the officials didn't vote themselves the pay increase, but rather that some "impartial" bunch of white hat guys did.

It doesn't take a genius to understand that a majority of officials in Benton township are trying the same old con game. A majority of the township board of trustees voted last March to establish a compensation commission. Naturally, there wasn't any intention to appoint unfriendly types to the commission.

Fortunately, several Benton residents recognized the commission ordinance for the special interest legislation that it is. They gathered enough signatures to force the referendum that is coming up next Tuesday.

The ballot reads: "Shall the Benton Township Compensation Commission Ordinance, heretofore adopted at the regular March 15, 1977, meeting of the Benton Township Board of Trustees, be repealed?"

A "yes" vote is for repeal of the ordinance. A "no" vote is for retaining the ordinance. A simple majority of "yes" votes means that citizens will continue the traditional practice of approving or rejecting recommended salaries of elected, salaried officials at annual meetings. That's where the power should lie, with the people.

If the compensation commission stays in being, its salary determinations could only be overturned by a two-thirds vote of the board of trustees. That'll happen when two Sundays come together.

History repeats itself. The Lansing and Washington pay raids will be repeated in Benton if the township retains the compensation commission. Benton voters have a chance Tuesday to prevent that. They simply have to vote "yes."

DID ST. JOE VOTE TO SAVE SPORTS?

Editor,

I didn't realize that we were voting to save athletics and other activities, but according to our local media, i.e., WHFB, apparently we did.

Their newscast blared out at 8:00 A.M. on Tuesday as follows: "The future of the Bears and other extracurricular activities seems to be assured with the passage of the millage election." The newscaster went on to relate how the same program was saved at Niles Brandywine; not one mention about education. So now the truth, in fact, is.

I wholeheartedly agree with Mr. Payne in his letter to the Editor recently.

If we have to take a hit in our belts due to inflation and the energy crunch — then our institutions should do likewise. After all, they do have courses in Economics, don't they? Or is that course obsolete in this day and age?

The present school board should come down out of their Ivory Tower and be more realistic. If athletics must be sacrificed for education, then so be it!

ABORTION MONEY MURDER MONEY

Editor,

An article of Monday Aug. 8th read — "State has Medicaid Abortion money available until Oct. 1." It should have read — "State has murder money available till Oct. 1." Gov. Milliken has fulfilled the Bible saying — "Woe when men shall call evil good and good evil. His twisted thinking tells him that is more wrong to keep poor people from getting an abortion than to kill that innocent baby the woman is going to have. Just because a rich person can fix tickets, pull strings and kill innocent unborn children does not make it right. Nor should we feel a need to make it possible to pay for the poor to commit the same evils in our nation. The Bible tells us that sin is a reproach to any nation, but rightness will lift a nation up. In the end those who take a life of a baby will pay for it at the Great White Throne of Judgment, and that's one court that will repeat and punish those who would make murder (abortion) the law.

RABBI RESPONDS ON ISRAELI-ARAB ISSUES

Editor,

Thank you for printing my letter on August 1, 1977. As a challenge to that letter was printed on August 8th, I would like to clarify several new issues raised concerning Israel and the Middle East.

The letter of August 8th cites two incidents which in some way are supposed to show Jewish "cruelty" to Arabs. One was the bombing of the King David Hotel and the other was the attack on the U.S.S. Liberty during the Six-Day War. It should be noted from the start that neither of these incidents has any bearing on the question of Jewish treatment of Arabs because neither of them involved Arabs, but at least the historical record should be explained.

The King David Hotel was used by the British army as its headquarters. Its bombing was a military act with a military objective. It was preceded by a warning to the British that the building be evacuated, a warning that the British chose to ignore. I am not in favor of acts of terrorism of any kind, but I would not equate one such as this against the British army with acts perpetrated on innocent civilians, airplane passengers, school children, Olympic athletes and other unarmed, defenseless civilians.

The U.S.S. Liberty was attacked by error during the Six-Day War because when confronted by radio it refused to identify itself. It was a mistake for which Israel immediately apologized and did not, to my knowledge, try to blame anyone words who used television to see that those words got a much wider audience.

Johnson and Nixon were dreadful on television, losing ground every time they went on the tube. Ford was neither enlarged nor diminished by the medium.

Carter, on the other hand, understands the secret of television — that it is, in Reedy's words, "a medium that communicates words very powerfully," a medium that is predominantly visual, not verbal.

Carter is not a man of words. His prose is utilitarian, not inspiring. But his gestures — the suitbag over his shoulder, the Inaugural walk, the sweater, the rolled-up sleeves — say louder than any words that this president is of the people, not apart from them; that our ways are his ways, that he therefore can be trusted with our destiny.

What remains to be seen is whether Carter, having established this non-verbal link with his fellow citizens, can now utilize television to educate the public on the tough issues he must decide as president. He has not yet done so. Indeed, he has dodged several choice opportunities to illuminate difficult policy decisions.

At Yezoo City, for instance, he was asked a rather pointed question about the wisdom of a new Panama Canal treaty. He did not say, as he should have, that our existing treaty was obtained a half century ago through deceit on our part, that it is perceived as a burning insult by Panamans that all of Latin America is waiting to see how we face up to this last remnant of early U.S. imperialism.

Instead, Carter poured out a soothing, one-sided description of the privileges the U.S. would retain under a new treaty and then digressed into speculation about the need for a second Panama Canal.

Worry Democrats

When Moynihan recently urged the President to prosecute Soviet diplomats who have been hugging Americans in this country, the President snarled back at a press conference that, in effect, Moynihan didn't have good credentials because he had so recently been a Republican. (Moynihan served President Nixon in the White House and as ambassador to India, and President Ford as United Nations ambassador.)

The White House later called to smooth Moynihan's ruffled feathers, but some White House aides have muttered privately they suspect Moynihan will continue to be troublesome because he has presidential ambitions.

Ben Wattenberg, a Johnson White House speechwriter and author who is a prime mover behind CDM's revival, insists that the organization is not out to hurt the President, merely to keep his feet to the fire in certain areas. CDM will oppose the President's plans to pull troops out of South Korea, recognize Cuba, and improve diplomatic ties with North Vietnam. But CDM will also support the President on his efforts to win congressional approval of a neutron bomb and, so far at least, his negotiations for a new treaty for the Panama Canal.

Former CDM officials were active in opposing the President's nomination of Paul Warnke in March as director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and as chief negotiator in Strategic Arms Limitation Talks with the Soviet Union. They believed Warnke to be "too dovish" to deal firmly with the Russians. Forty Senators voted against Warnke, which his opponents considered a great psychological victory over a brand-new President.

The Community Services Administration, which runs the program, "has forfeited a great deal of credibility not because it has been unable to eradicate poverty, but because it has wasted precious resources in the attempt," said the report by the House Government Operations subcommittee.

SJ Concert To Feature Chorus And Clarinet

By JIM SHANAHAN
City Editor

Voces and a clarinet will be featured at the St. Joseph Municipal band concert Sunday.

The voices belong to the Fruit Belt chorus of the Benton Harbor-St. Joseph chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America.

The clarinet is Mike Chesher's. He is principal clarinetist in the band and will play a solo, "Concertino" by von Weber.

The afternoon concert is at 2:30 and will be followed by a repeat performance at 7:30 in Howard's bandshell, Lake boulevard and Port street. The concerts are free.

Roger Valentine, of Bangor, is director of the Fruit Belt chorus which will sing group numbers.

There also will be selections by several quartets from the chorus of 35 members.

The chorus placed third in the spring "state" contest for choruses of 40 or less members and is now preparing for the annual quartet show Sept. 17 at St. Joseph high school.

Chesher is a graduate of Oberlin (Ohio) College conservatory and is working for a master's degree in music performance at Northwestern university. He has been teaching clarinet in southwest Michigan the past year.

Director John E.N. Howard said the band will honor requests for "Olympia Hippodrome March," selections from Meredith Wilson's "The Music Man," and "Fanfare for the Common Man" by Aaron Copland.

A special presentation is scheduled for the evening concert. Director and Mrs. Howard will receive a prize-winning photograph of Howard bandshell in the winter of 1977. The picture was taken by Kimberly Schultz, daughter of Adela Schultz and Robert E. Schultz. The picture was a winner in international judging of Parents Without Partners contest.

Presentation of the picture will be by Dorothy Gilbert, past president of Parents Without Partners International, representing Twin Cities chapter 151.

Lakeshore Tax Vote Saturday

By ALAN AREND
Staff Writer

Lakeshore school district voters go to the polls Saturday to decide the fate of two property tax issues for school operational purposes.

Passage of both requests is $254,000. If both are approved the district would be another $70,000 to the good, Galbreath said.

Just what cuts would be made or how much of the district's $375,000 cash fund equity (reserve) would be used to offset another millage failure, has not been pinpointed by the board.

Galbreath said the cash fund equity is used during "dry periods" when no tax money is coming in before the first of the year. The school board also feels it's sound management to keep a reserve on hand in case of emergencies.

Like other school districts, Lakeshore borrows money each fall in anticipation of local property tax and state aid payments. "By using part of the cash fund equity during these dry periods, the amount we have to borrow to pay bills is also less," Galbreath said. Last year the board had to borrow $616,000 in anticipation of receipts.

Supt. Frederick Schmidt has stated the board will be able to reduce the district's debt repayment levy from 4.4 to 4.1 mills this year due to an increase in the state aid debt reimbursement funding.

Lakeshore's current millage is 29.276 mills, including 8.78 allocated by the county, 16.5 mills extra voted, and the 4.4 for debt retirement.

So, the district's total mill levy will be either 31.978 mills (if both proposals pass); 30.978 mills (if just the two-mill levy is approved); 29.978 mills (if just the one-mill request is approved) or 28.978 mills (if neither request is approved).

John Steinke, school board president, has said "We will not seek another millage election this year. If the proposals fail, then cuts will have to be made from our program," a program he feels is one of the best in the state.

In outlining some possible cuts, Steinke said the board would probably not purchase three new school buses this year, which would cost $100,000; and would not institute new programs such as a comprehensive reading program for the junior high and building trades classes at the high school level. The board tries to replace three buses every year from its fleet of 25.

"If we don't replace three buses this year, then we'll probably have to replace six the following year," Steinke said.

In June, district voters defeated a single, three-mill request for three years by a 1,064 to 684 vote count. The board sought the Saturday election date in an effort to get more voters to the polls. The June turnout was only 20 per cent of the school district's registered voters. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Millage Seeking Proposals $486,000 needed in order for the district to meet its 1977-78 budget of $5.5 million, without making some program cuts.

William Galbreath, assistant superintendent for business affairs, said if both the two-mill request and a separate one-mill request pass, $486,000 would be generated from both local and state sources. Both requests are for three years.

The district had projected a deficit of $410,000 for the 1977-78 school year.

If just the two-mill request is approved, then $324,000 would be raised, leaving a projected deficit of $82,000. If only the one-mill tax levy is approved, then only $162,000 would be raised leaving a deficit of

Planners Okay Lot Combination

The Benton township planning commission last night recommended approval of a lot combination on East Main street so a 100 by 40-foot church could be built there.

The request by C.M. Jones, minister of the Beautiful Gate Baptist church, was to combine lots at 1209, 1211 and 1213 East Main street. Beautiful Gate Baptist currently has a smaller church on one of the lots.

The planning commission also recommended approval of a request by Steve Kenney for a peddler's and auction license to operate a flea market at 1005 Territorial road.

Marshall.

Two of the wineries are relatively obscure.

Vendramino Vineyards, where an abandoned cider mill is used to crush grapes, has been selling wine for only five weeks. Penn Valley Vineyards has had wines on the market for only a year.

The owner of Vendramino Vineyards is John J. Coleman, a 33-year-old Ford Motor Co. engineer from Dearborn, who works the winery by hand in his spare time with the help of his family.

His winning red wine, which will be served with the state dinner's main course, impressed a panel of 30 judges despite its lack of a fancy name. It's just called red wine.

"I could call it a burgundy or some fancy name, but that's overworked," Coleman said.

"It's a bargain. My wine will be the cheapest one on the menu."

It costs $2.19 a bottle and is available only in fifths.

Fenn Valley, a family-owned winery headed by William Welsh, was selected to provide two wines — a white Riesling to go with the fish course of stuffed pike and a Vidal Blanc to be served with the cherries jubilee dessert.

The Riesling sells for $3.85 a fifth and the Vidal Blanc for $4.25 at the vineyard.

St. Julian Wine Co. was picked to provide champagne. Its winning entry, called St. Julian Vidal, is new and the supply is limited. It sells for $4.49 at the winery.

The panel of judges, composed mainly of media representatives, made the selections from a wide variety of entries from Michigan wineries.

The houses included those of designer Bobbie Guertel, 1620 Niles Avenue, St. Joseph; designer Joyce Livengood, 683 Greenbrook, St. Joseph; Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Borre, 1633 Linden Drive, St. Joseph, where Lee Maickel designed a bedroom; designer Robert Carr, 224 North Maplewood Drive, Berrien Springs; D.M. Brune home, 9904 St. Joseph Avenue where Mary Dill was the decorator, and Mr. and Mrs. Steven Pierpont, 3120 Bluffwood, St. Joseph.

The Symphony League was organized in 1975 to give financial and other support to the Twin Symphonic Society, which sponsors the Twin Cities Symphony.

Proceeds from the designers home tour and for two appearances of "Up With People" Sept. 15 and 17, will be used to support the society during the 1977-78 year.

New Fabric Technology

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newswires Writer

That fashionable suit or dress you take for granted may be a technological achievement of sorts in this era of new fabrics. In fact, taming lapels or sleeve cuffs to get a smooth quality look takes a good deal of know-how.

A lot of missing links are pieced together by expert Rose Russo and her group of 12 at a research center that assists manufacturers in using fusible, nonwoven interfacings for construction of garments to control shape and provide better fit.

Mrs. Russo was recently named director of the 12-year-old apparel research and development center established by Pellon, which she had joined at its inception. The company has been an innovator in nonwoven textiles for 25 years.

"These days fewer skilled operators are available in garment manufacture at a time when some new fabrics, such as stretchy ones, are difficult to handle. Fusing helps provide a better garment and a tailored look," she explained.

"For example, many things must be controlled — the rolling of lapels, puckering or bubbling, shrinkage, or nap problems such as those presented by velvets and corduroys, which require different fusing methods," says Mrs. Russo. Her mother was a seamstress and her father was a tailor, which reinforces her professional wisdom.

New fusibles are developed in their company laboratory at Lowell, Mass., and the tests are made at the center. One of the newest of hundreds is one that can maintain see-through quality, developed to suit the sheer fabrics now being used in blouses and dresses, she points out. It's a soft, sheer, mottled kind of nonwoven that blends right into the fabric.

Fusing is being used by manufacturers and designers of garments ranging from $5 to $500, said Mrs. Russo, who had just returned from California, where she spoke at a seminar of 25 manufacturers.

"We recommend how interfacing should be cut for a particular fabric, how grain lines should be used, how to put a garment together, the proper tension of the thread that should be used," she said. "Some fabrics might be stretchy, some might buckle."

A graduate of Fashion Institute of Technology and a former pattern maker for McCall's, Mrs. Russo may even find that the pattern itself is at the root of the manufacturer's problem.

Twenty professional dry cleanings and rigorous tests in the washing machine may be needed to determine whether a piece of fabric gets a seal of approval.

The research center has seven fusing machines, and a manufacturer may need help in choosing the proper machine for a particular garment, Mrs. Russo says. Instructions are often set in getting a machine to get a proper bond and on the time and pressure that may be required to fuse a garment.

Prepare Cars For Delivery

All-Woman Team

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Every day is Ladies' Day down on the docks of this bustling Florida seaport, where 139 women jockey thousands of just-off-the-ship new cars and trucks back and forth and around the half-mile-square area that stretches along the St. John River.

Their job at this port of entry is to carry out the installation work order taped to the windshield of every car in the 3,000 car shipments.

Radio, air conditioner and stripe for one, air conditioner and vinyl top for another, carpet saver for the four-door and so on, for 2,000 more.

All are routinely washed, undecorated and glazed before they are parked in a designated row to be picked up and trucked to Toyota dealers.

The crew's supervisor, Pauline Swain, says the women are a lot better at the tough, technical and physically demanding job than the college kids used in the work up until seven years ago.

"First thing the guys wanted to do was let 'em rip — see how fast they could go. The result: collisions — one after another," she says. "But the ladies are real nice with the cars. They pamper and coddle them and their work is always neat and precise. You should see the tape stripping job they do on the cars."

What is popularly known as the Tallyrand Relay starts between 6:45 and 7 every morning when the women come tooling down Tallyrand avenue of Jacksonville's north side past the guard at the southeast Toyota distributor's gate.

Minutes later they fan out in teams — married, widowed and divorced women; deserted wives, new brides, grandmothers and teen-agers; former telephone operators, factory workers, waitresses, seamstresses, saleswomen and housewives; pigtailed, upswept, bandannaed, denim, smocked, sneakered and more.

"Women's liberation is scary, and it's easier to fantasize than to change," said Dr. Cathy N. Davidson and Dr. Katherine Landerson, English professors at Michigan State university.

One author capitalizing on fantasies is Rosemary Rogers, whose swashbuckling costume epics "Wicked Loving Lies" and "Sweet Savage Love" have made her one of the world's best-selling novelists with a $1 million annual income.

Other popular novels, both paperback and hardbound, have storylines that betray a fascination with female bondage both literal and figurative: heroines captured by Indians or aborigines and others mentally abused by men or locked up in mental hospitals following frustrated attempts at being "liberated."

Dr. Joyce Landerson, a women's studies specialist in MSU's American thought and cinematography, they're ready to start. First into the cars stretched in bear rows as far as the eye can see is the wash team.

"Eight of them get 1,500 cars a day through the car wash," their supervisor boasts.

Philippine-born Nancy Berchetti, 4-feet-11, who weighs less than 100 pounds, has been on the wash team for five years, and also does undercoating and glazing. "I love it and make many friends," she says.

She is up at 5 a.m. to fix lunch for her husband and two small children. Before work she drops the kids off at a nursery and collects them on the way home.

As soon as the conveyor belt moves her vehicle out of the wash cycle, Nancy darts in and keeps off to park it in the radio line. There the radio team takes over.

"Never drove a car with a stick shift before," she recalled. "I just froze and couldn't stop. But that Pauline, she didn't free me. She told me to go home and learn to drive a stick shift car. So I borrowed an old truck and drove it around a field until I got the hang of it."

Romance Alive And Well In Women's Literature

EAST LANSING — Whether it's in Cosmopolitan magazine or the modern historical novels with their ravished heroines, the fiction women today enjoy shows that women's lib hasn't altered their taste for mid-feminized romance.

"Women's liberation is scary, and it's easier to fantasize than to change," said Dr. Cathy N. Davidson and Dr. Katherine Landerson, English professors at Michigan State university.

One author capitalizing on fantasies is Rosemary Rogers, whose swashbuckling costume epics "Wicked Loving Lies" and "Sweet Savage Love" have made her one of the world's best-selling novelists with a $1 million annual income.

Other popular novels, both paperback and hardbound, have storylines that betray a fascination with female bondage both literal and figurative: heroines captured by Indians or aborigines and others mentally abused by men or locked up in mental hospitals following frustrated attempts at being "liberated."

Dr. Joyce Landerson, a women's studies specialist in MSU's American thought and language department, attributes the high availability of such novels to a "cultural lag" in America helped along by the TV, movie and publishing industries.

"American culture is not ready for heroic female models," she explained. "The movie industry, which is controlled by men, gives us films about prostitutes and women who crack up and it fails to the feminist press to publish what Knopf and Harcourt won't touch."

All three pointed out that there are plenty of books on the scene, both current and dating from earlier times, that deal with strong, independent women who cope armed with a sense of humor instead of floundering in despair. They tend to remain obscure for lack of publicity.

"American women make up their minds about liberation based on what information they have," Dr. Landerson said. "In some people's minds, Sylvia Plath and Anne Sexton, the real life prototypes of neurotic fictional heroines, form the whole image of women in literature."

Currently, the readily available information includes the costume fantasy novels which reinforce stereotypes and the double standard," Dr. Davidson says. Dr. Landerson points to soap operas, old movies on TV ("See how Bogart treats Bacall"), and women's magazines.

"Ladies Home Journal, and Redbook are more widely read than Ms. magazine, she says. "And even though the articles have changed somewhat, these magazines still have a 'care of the home' emphasis."

Dr. Davidson says that even the highly popular Cosmopolitan, despite suggestions of swinging on its covers, features fiction that summarily contradicts the quasi-feminist rhetoric of editor Helen Gurley Brown's ("Cosmo-girl") philosophy: "men are wonderful, but you must live through them or children and must achieve on your own."

In surveying more than 30 stories over an 18-month period, the professor discovered that the stories center on two main themes, the second extension of the first, the quest for sexual satisfaction, a phenomenon described like the kisses of a schoolgirl fiction in terms of violins and sunsets; the quest for a relationship of social responsibility with a steady man, fiance or husband.

Meanwhile, "forgotten women's literature and current women's novels that don't have the high profile of 'Fear of Flying' or 'Looking for Mr. Goodbar' portray women in a different light."

Dr. Davidson says Canadian novelist Margaret Laurence ("The Fire Dwellers," "The Devil's River," "Lady Oracle," "The Edible Woman") while about women who see the dignity of being ordinary.

Even Judith Rosner, the American author of "Mr. Good-

PICKLES IN THE FREEZER

Often Asked Questions

When home gardens start producing cucumbers in abundance, as they have this year, Extension officers are bombarded with pickling questions and problems, according to Maryann Beckman, District Extension Consumer Marketing Information Agent.

According to Mrs. Beckman, here are some answers to the most frequently asked questions.

"What has made my pickles shrivel?"

Shriving often results from using too strong a vinegar, sugar or salt solution at the start of the pickling process. If you are making very sweet or very sour pickles, start with a dilute solution and increase gradually to the desired strength.

Overcooking or overprocessing may cause shriveling, too. If your recipe calls for heating pickles in the pickling solution for five minutes, it means five minutes and not ten. Pack into hot jars at the end of the five minute cooking time, without any further cooking.

Some problems can also occur if you don't count processing time properly. With most recipes you start to count the processing time as soon as the water in the canner returns to boiling. With fresh-pack dill pickles, however, you start counting the processing time as soon as the hot jars are placed in the actively boiling water.

You can also get shriveled pickles and hollow pickles by using cucumbers that have been pickled too long. For the most successful pickles, use cucumbers within 24 hours after pickling. Keep them refrigerated until you are ready to make pickles.

"We've never processed pickles ever before. Why do we have to do now?"

It is true that many people have never processed pickles, but the new and recommended recipes suggest that you process the filled jars in a boiling water bath canner to have safe pickles.

Pickle products need heat treatment to destroy organisms that cause spoilage and to inactivate enzymes that affect flavor, color and texture. Many people feel this processing will overcook the pickles and make them mushy, but it is not so, if you use a new and updated recipe.

"My pickles all turned dark. What did I do wrong?"

Dark pickles could be caused by the use of ground (rather than whole) spices, too much spice, too many minerals in the water (especially iron), by using improper utensils or by overcooking. Using iodized salt, rather than pure granulated or pickling salt, can cause pickles to darken, too.

For heating pickling liquids, use utensils of unchipped enamelware, stainless steel, aluminum or glass. Do not use copper, brass, galvanized or iron utensils, for these metals react with the acids and salts used and cause color changes or form undesirable compounds. For fermenting or brining, use a crock or stone jar, unchipped enamel lined pan or glass.

"The pickle recipe I have is too sour for us! Can I dilute the vinegar?"

No, not if you want a safe product and not unless the recipe specifies. If you want a less sour product, add sugar rather than decrease the vinegar.

"My pickles have a layer of white stuff on the bottom of the jar. They seem to be sealed, but is this harmful?"

Probably not if the pickles are firm and tightly sealed, for a small amount of white sediment is normal. The sediment is caused by harmless yeasts that have grown on the surface and then settled. If there is an excessive amount and/or if the pickles are soft, spoilage is evident and the pickles should not be used.

"Can you freeze pickles?"

Yes, if you use a recipe especially designed for freezing.

Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Mom A Drag As Schoolmate

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a healthy, normal, 16-year-old high school girl with a problem I have never seen mentioned in your column before. It's my mother — but not the usual mother-daughter stuff. Dear Ann:

Mom never finished high school. She has decided to go back — in September. With me. She thinks it's neat to be going to school during the day instead of at night like most older people who want to get a diploma.

I'm dreading the next year something awful. If Mom is in any of my classes I will just die. Can you imagine what it would be like to have your own mother sitting there with all your friends, trying to be one of the gang?

I've tried to talk her out of it but she says, "You ought to be proud of me." Well, I'm not proud. I am dying inside. Tell me how to handle this. I need to get my head ready. — Off The Wall in Washington

Dear Off: Some daughters would not mind if their mothers decided to go to school with them, but since you do I think it's too bad she didn't respect your feelings. Stuck is stuck, honey, so be a good sport. This, too, shall pass. In fact, you might look back at the whole thing in a few years as a hilarious episode.

Preacher Not

Dear Ann Landers: Here's a word of encouragement for that minister who was feeling guilty because he went ahead and performed the marriage ceremony for a couple he didn't think would make it.

It seems the groom got cold feet at the last minute — he wanted to back out but the bride and her family raised such a fuss he reluctantly agreed to go ahead and marry her. It was the minister's wife who wrote about his "guilty conscience" and asked other clergymen to express themselves. This letter to her:

Dear Woman: Please tell your husband's conscience to shut up. No minister is so wise he can predict which marriages will succeed and which will fail. Only God knows that.

The couple's final decision was to get married and their husband carried out their request. In no way is he responsible if they later regret the decision and the marriage breaks up. Sign me — Forty-Two Years A Presbyterian Pastor, A. Taylor Dunlap — Tukwila, Wash.

Dear Rev.: Thanks for the day-brightener. I agree with you completely — and so did about 400 other clergymen of all faiths.

Unwanted Boys

Dear Ann: I've got to write

ANN LANDERS

this before I cool down and chicken out. Twice in the past two weeks our 17-year-old son's friends have come to our door looking for a place to sleep because their own parents locked them out.

Two of the boys are brothers. Their parents are well-to-do. The kids have had all the things money can buy and no guidance.

The other boy doesn't get along with his dad. His mother told him to stay away "for your own good" because "if your father finds you here, he might do something terrible." (I don't believe it. She just doesn't want to be bothered with him.)

Am I doing the right thing by giving these boys shelter? Some people say no. — Everybody's Mum

Dear Mum: I say yes. To turn them away would be cruel. I hope you suggest counseling for the boys. It's a winch their parents won't get it — and these kids need some understanding of what goes on in their lives.

What's prudish? What's O.K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help? It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting — What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11955, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing 90 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

4. I got an 83 on my health test.

The plight of the working mother will be summoned to the business phone to hear the voice of her child say, "Mom, can I make a raft and mess around on the Ohio River with Huckleberry Hickey?"

Striving to keep her carpenter composite, the mother, remembering she is a professional, will clutch her throat and shout, "You leave the house and I'll break your head."

"If you want to find out how indispensable you really are," said one mother, "just get a job and wait for the phone to ring. My kids have had me called out of conferences involving thousands of dollars to electrify me with such breathless decisions as:

Am I doing the right thing by giving these boys shelter? Some people say no. — Everybody's Mum

Dear Mum: I say yes. To turn them away would be cruel. I hope you suggest counseling for the boys. It's a winch their parents won't get it — and these kids need some understanding of what goes on in their lives.

What's prudish? What's O.K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help? It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting — What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11955, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing 90 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

1. Can I split a Pepsi with Kathy?

2. Guess what the dog dug up?

3. Did you wash my white shorts for gym tomorrow?

4. I got an 83 on my health test.

5. Rick just got his driver's license. Can I go with him to town and see how he does in traffic?

The plight of the working mother will be summoned to the business phone to hear the voice of her child say, "Mom, can I make a raft and mess around on the Ohio River with Huckleberry Hickey?"

Striving to keep her carpenter composite, the mother, remembering she is a professional, will clutch her throat and shout, "You leave the house and I'll break your head."

"If you want to find out how indispensable you really are," said one mother, "just get a job and wait for the phone to ring. My kids have had me called out of conferences involving thousands of dollars to electrify me with such breathless decisions as:

1. Can I split a Pepsi with Kathy?

3. Did you wash my white shorts for gym tomorrow?

4. I got an 83 on my health test.

5. Rick just got his driver's license. Can I go with him to town and see how he does in traffic?

The other boy doesn't get along with his dad. His mother told him to stay away "for your own good" because "if your father finds you here, he might do something terrible." (I don't believe it. She just doesn't want to be bothered with him.)

State On Collision Course With Blues

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan Blue Cross-Blue Shield and the state official who regulates the health insurer appear headed for another collision over a consumer advocate's claims the Blues board has depoed.

Blues board chairman James Woodruff repeated charges Thursday that former board member Charles Chomet acted irresponsibly by making inaccurate and deceptive public statements about the Blues.

But State Insurance Commissioner Thomas Jones indicated he was leaning toward putting Chomet to a second term. Woodruff made his comments after he and Blues President John McCabe emerged from an hour-long meeting with Gov. William Milliken.

Panel Says Law Has No 'Teeth'

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The main problem with a state law requiring education for the handicapped is that school districts cannot be forced to comply, the report said.

That's the conclusion of a 28-member task force which has been studying the impact of the law since January.

The six-year-old law says every handicapped person in the state is entitled to educational services from birth to age 26.

The task force, in a report issued Thursday, said that despite progress since the law was passed, Michigan still has a long way to go to meet the educational needs of many of its handicapped students.

"Among the states, Michigan has earned a solid reputation as a special education service provider. Nevertheless, significant gaps and limitations were found," the task force said. The report contains 63 recommendations aimed at improving special education.

"The problem that exists with Mr. Chomet in the eyes of the corporate body was Mr. Chomet's inaccurate and deceptive public comments, and the corporate body interpreted that as irresponsible membership," he said.

But he added the vote to reject Chomet "was not a move to reject the commissioner's power to nominate someone."

"I'm certain that if the commissioner nominates someone else, probably that person would be accepted," he said, adding that both Jones and Milliken "fully understand our position."

But Jones, in an appearance on WKAR-TV in East Lansing, said he feels it's "important for Chuck Chomet to be on the Blues board."

Jones said the prospect that the board might again reject Chomet would not stop him from renominating him, adding that he'd probably lose if the vote were taken Thursday. Apparently, Jones feels that adverse public reaction to a second rejection of Chomet might help his chances this fall to win approval of legislation to change the makeup of the Blues' board and possibly require that its board meetings be open to the public.

Chomet, who heads a nursing home watchdog organization in the Detroit area, had publicly said it's important that the Blues through their structure cannot be in a position to censure or reject people simply because they speak out and criticize the board," Jones said.

Chomet, who heads a nursing home watchdog organization in the Detroit area, had publicly accused the Blues of mismanagement. He also spoke out against a $15,000 raise the board recently gave to McCabe, boosting his salary to $110,000 annually.

He is one of four nominees Jones makes. The remaining 89 members of the board represent 28 corporations with

GONE ARE OCEAN SPLASHDOWNS

Shuttle Test Is Critical Milestone

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Two computer-aided astronauts were sent to guide the Space Shuttle Enterprise today in its first flight and landing free of its Boeing 747 mother ship.

The test is a critical milestone in the development of the airliner-sized space bus designed to make hundreds of flights into near-Earth orbit during the next decade, carrying men and up to 65,000 pounds of cargo.

Preparation of the engineless 75-ton craft was running smoothly early today at this sprawling desert base northeast of Los Angeles.

The crewmen, Fred Haise, 43, and Gordon Fullerton, 40, had honed their maneuvering skills in a special jet trainer on Thursday.

"I know of no open issues at this point" that would prevent the flight, said Donald Slayton, manager of the approach and landing tests here.

The 747 jumbo jet, with the shuttle crouched on its top, was to take off at 8 a.m. PDT and climb high over this desert air base. At an altitude of about 25,000 feet, explosive charges were to break the connection between the piggybacked craft, launching the shuttle on a 4½-minute glide which ends with a landing on a seven-mile-long dry lake.

For the 50,000 to 70,000 spectators expected to gather at the base, the test was a preview of how future manned space flights will end. Gone are the ocean splashdowns that were required in the days of the Apollo moon missions, and in their place will be shuttles touching down at more than 200 miles per hour.

Lacking any engine that could permit a second landing try, the shuttle must be guided perfectly during its approach at more than 300 m.p.h. The landing requires precise flying skills and thus a system of five computers and a set of electronic nerves translates the pilots' control orders into the shuttle's maneuvers.

To ensure a faultless landing a funnel of electronic microwave beams is aimed at the speeding shuttle from a ground transmitter. Much like an airliner making a cloud-shrouded instrument landing, the shuttle can follow the beams down to the touchdown point.

The air worthiness of the Boeing 747 carrier plane with the shuttle riding on top was proven in a series of eight previous flights here earlier this year. During the final "captive tests," Haise and Fullerton — alternating with a second crew, Joseph Engle and Richard Truly — rode in the shuttle as the mated craft rehearsed the separation maneuvers.

Haise, the junior module pilot on the Apollo 13 craft that had to return to earth after an explosion in space, is the only one of the test pilots to have flown in space. Fullerton was an astronaut selected for the scrapped Manned Orbiting Laboratory program.

Today's test is the first of about eight planned to explore the cumbersome shuttle's gliding and landing characteristics.

Slayton has said that it flies like a jet fighter with a failed engine; it falls steeply and quickly. He said that a single successful test of the landing capabilities would be sufficient to go ahead with the first actual test firing of the shuttle into orbit, scheduled for early in 1979.

Its work completed, the orbiter will fire a short rocket blast to head it earthward, then soar back through the atmosphere to a landing on special airstrips at Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., and Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Development of the shuttle, expected to cost $5.2 billion through its first orbital flight in 1979, comes at a time when the nation's space program has turned away from the technology proving days of the Apollo moon missions to an emphasis on near-Earth missions applicable to human tasks.

Among uses the shuttle is designed for are placing communications, navigation and weather satellites in orbit; carrying scientists on astronomical and basic science missions; repairing or replacing malfunctioning or obsolete satellites and rescuing crews of space craft in trouble.

The Department of Defense also plans to use shuttle flights for military purposes that have not been specified, although surveillance of foreign military activities would seem a likely aim.

NASA officials say that the reusable shuttles, which can be refitted for another mission within two weeks of returning to Earth, may save more than $18 billion over 12 years of planned flights when compared with the cost of rockets that can only be used once, as in former space flight programs.

It has been estimated that 570 shuttle flights will take place between 1980 and 1991.

Union Urging End To Strike

DETROIT (AP) — A wildcat walkout continued early today at Chrysler's Trenton, Mich., engine plant, despite the urgencies of high ranking United Auto Workers officials that the 4,000 strikers return to work.

The strike, which began Monday, has forced Chrysler to institute sharp production cuts because of parts shortages. Some 16,000 workers were affected by the cuts, which idled

Woman Hits Third Win In Lottery

DETROIT (AP) — A 48-year-old Pontiac mother of four is now the second-biggest winner in the Bureau of State Lottery weekly Michigan show after collecting $100,000 Thursday in her third appearance on the show.

Artiller Carlis, a cafeteria helper at Jefferson Junior High School in Pontiac, now has $144,000 to add to her bank account and will try to boost that with a fourth appearance next week.

Mrs. Carlis' husband, John, a relief man for the General Motors Pontiac Division, originally gave her the ticket as gift. The couple has four daughters.

Of the six other contestants on Thursday's show, Monte Teduzzi, 71, of Detroit, took home the most money — $31,000. Teduzzi was represented on the program by his daughter, Beatrice Hedge. Other winners were:

—Richard Hornreich, 49, Grand Rapids, $11,000.

—Joseph Loveridge, 56, Monroe, $8,000.

—Dale Smith, 46, Elkhira, $6,000.

—Thomas Mohan, 52, Wauwatosa, Wis., $5,000.

—Richard Nicholas, 54, Mishawaka, Ind., $3,000.

two plants and slowed production at two others.

Robert Battle, director of the UAW's 1-A region in the Detroit area, said the union would press for a meeting to settle grievances with Chrysler as soon as the strikers were back on the job.

The agreement to push for a return to work came at a three-hour meeting attended Thursday by Robert Smith, president of striking Local 372, and all of that local's stewards and other officers.

Battle and Horner Jolly, assistant to Mark Steppas, UAW vice president and director of its Chrysler department, joined the back-to-work plea.

The committee "agreed 100 percent to urge fellow workers to go back on the job," Battle said.

He said he had not contacted the company, trying instead to concentrate on getting the union members back to work.

"Even though the strike is a wildcat, we have an obligation to our members to get their grievances processed, especially ones dealing with the heat wave last month when the company reportedly would not give some of our workers heat passes to let them get off the job for a while and cool off," he said.

Union leaders planned to visit the local hall to report on the meeting and try to persuade the workers to return.

Non-struck plants affected by the parts shortages included the Hamtramck car assembly plant, where 9,000 workers were trimmed to two four-hour shifts for Thursday and Friday. The factory makes Aspens and Volares.

Four-hour shifts were instituted at a Warren plant producing pickup trucks. Another plant in the Warren complex which makes vans, was limited to a single four-hour shift.

Kalamazoo Sheriff Faces Recall Vote

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Kalamazoo County Sheriff Ronald Keim will be the target of a recall election Sept. 26, nine months after he cleaned out his department of 11 deputies, including two political opponents. If Keim is dumped in September, an election to choose his successor will be held in November, State Elections Director Bernard Apol said Thursday. The recall campaign against the 44-year-old Republican sheriff was spearheaded by the dismissed deputies and local labor leaders, who gathered 14,552 signatures.

Body Suspected To Be Of Nazi War Criminal

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP) — A mystery man's body lay unclaimed in an Asuncion police morgue today while West German officials tried to determine if he was alleged Nazi war criminal Eduard Roschmann.

If so, it would end a 30-year hunt for an elusive fugitive known as the "Butcher of Riga" who apparently stayed one step ahead of his trackers in South America in recent months.

The Nazi was accused of supervising the slaughter of 40,000 Jews and killing 50 of them himself as a concentration camp commander.

Paraguayan officials have refused to comment on the case. The West German embassy said one of its consuls was trying to make a positive identification of the body.

The first report that the dead man was Roschmann came Thursday from a local newspaper that said identity papers with a known Roschmann alias were found on the corpse.

Emilio Wolf, a local delicatessen owner, who says he was imprisoned under Roschmann, has seen the body and says it is that of the former SS officer, who is believed to have fled to Argentina in 1948. Wolf said his parents and sister were executed at a Roschmann-run concentration camp.

But Nazi hunter Simon Wiesenthal said in Vienna Thursday that he does not believe Roschmann is dead. He said the German was spotted in Bolivia only last month.

"I wonder who died for him?" asked Wiesenthal, who heads the Jewish Documentation Center, an agency that keeps track of former Nazis.

The influential Paraguayan newspaper ABC-Color said the 84-year-old Nazi died of a heart attack in a local hospital Wednesday afternoon and his body was later removed to the morgue.

ABC-Color said papers on the body bore the name Federico Wegener, a Roschmann alias, and that the body was missing two toes on one foot and three on another, apparently from war wounds.

Roschmann allegedly ran an extermination camp near Riga, Latvia, between 1941 and 1943, and is wanted by a West German court for "premeditated murder" and racial hatred crimes.

His notoriety made him one of the main characters in the novel "The Odessa File," Frederick Forsyth's best-seller about a secret organization that helped top Nazis escape Germany after World War II.

The owner of an Asuncion boarding house told reporters Thursday that the dead man had taken up residence in her house in early July.

Mrs. Juana de Echagüe said the boarder, who claimed to be a merchant and rarely left his room, told her he had arrived in Paraguay a few days earlier and was looking for a German woman living in Asuncion.

Mrs. de Echagüe recalled that the man had several Oriental friends who showed him to her boarding house. He became ill on July 28 and was taken to the hospital by taxi, she said.

Roschmann's case was revived July 4 when the Argentine government announced it had agreed to accept a West German request for his extradition.

The report was initially interpreted to mean that Roschmann had been or was about to be arrested. But the Argentine government soon disclosed it knew he was not in Argentina and that arrest warrants it issued were mere legal formalities.

PLO Says Israelis Repulsed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Palestine Liberation Organization — PLO — claimed its guerrillas repulsed three Israeli tank attacks across the southern Lebanese border early today.

A communiqué from the PLO high command accused the Israelis of mounting the daybreak assaults in an attempt to capture the guerrilla-held southern village of Yarine just north of the Israeli border.

"A three-hour barrage of heavy artillery and rockets preceded the tank thrusts, which were all beaten back. One enemy tank was seen ablaze," the communiqué said. It made no mention of any casualties.

EASIER TREATMENT OPPOSED

Juvenile Proposals Stir Fight

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Proposals that would ease legal treatment of youthful offenders are behind a controversy over recommended revisions in the state's juvenile justice system.

Several witnesses used a hearing Thursday to strongly criticize proposals to shift 17-year-olds from adult to juvenile court and to eliminate "status offenses" such as running away and truancy.

But the suggested revisions got strong support from other persons dealing in the youth justice field.

The testimony was taken by the state's Juvenile Justice Services Commission, which after two years of work has issued extensive recommendations to change the way young people are dealt with when they break the law.

Its report contains some 126 proposed changes from current law. The commission split up Thursday to hear reaction to its plan at four day-long hearings in Lansing, Detroit, Marquette and Gaylord.

It will consider changing the report at a meeting later this month, then send it to Gov. William Milliken and the legislature in September.

Other proposals in the report include guaranteeing full due process rights in juvenile felony cases, regular court hearings to review sentences, local offices of youth services at the county level, and creation of a state Department of Children and Youth Services.

The second would remove status offenses from the juvenile code and provide only for voluntary services to combat such problems as running away or chronic disobedience to parents.

These proposals were supported by several witnesses who argued the present law is too tough on minor offenses and 17-year-olds. But they were sharply attacked by several witnesses.

Kent County Probate Judge Randall Hekman said enforcement of status offenses

"has been proven to be effective" in helping families. He said the proposed plan "provides no data to support such an upheaval."

He also argued that treating 17-year-olds as adults provides a crime deterrent to young people. He said crime rates may increase if 17-year-olds are treated by the "more lenient" probate courts.

"Kids tend to be deterred by the more stringent adult court sanctions," he said, evoking a short burst of applause from many at the hearing.

Carter Begins Intensive Review Of Panama Pact

By RICHARD E. MEYER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is going over the new Panama Canal pact word for word so he can okay every detail and start a sales blitz to convince Congress and the people it's safe, sure to improve Latin American relations and worth ratifying.

For the first time as President, Carter cleared his schedule today of all appointments but his regular intelligence briefing so he could devote the day to studying the agreement first hand.

Approval was expected. Carter gave his preliminary opinion Thursday: "I'm very pleased with it."

Moreover, White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker had told Linowitz he would not have agreed to the principles in the pact without the President's consent. Agreement was reached with the Panamanian government Wednesday night.

Officials at the departments of state and defense joined in today's review.

They and the President worked with copies of the agreement furnished by Bunker and Linowitz. Carter asked the ambassadors to note "special points of emphasis in the margins."

Carter welcomed the ambassadors Thursday as they arrived at the White House by helicopter after flying by jet from Panama. They went directly to the Cabinet Room, where Bunker and Linowitz gave the President details of the agreement first hand.

The joint chiefs of staff, Defense Secretary Harold Brown and Undersecretary of State Warren Christopher listened to the report. Gen. David C. Jones, Air Force chief of staff, said the agreement is one the joint chiefs could support fully and help ratify.

"This is a crucial element in the American people's acceptance of the treaty," Carter said. "Above all else, the security of our nation stands as the greatest concern with our own country, with our own ships being given expedited passage."

This agreement has given the United States "a new sense of partnership between ourselves and the Panamanians," the President said. Linowitz and Bunker have said it will bring improved relationships with all Latin American nations.

"I think the biggest responsibility is now on our shoulders," Carter said. "And I accept the leadership role to convince the American people we have reached an agreement that is advantageous to our own country, to our national security."

and to the free and open guarantee that the Panama Canal will continue to be used by everyone."

The agreement calls for two pacts to replace the current treaty, signed in 1903, which gave the United States perpetual control over the canal and the adjacent Canal Zone. Under the new agreement, this country would yield control of the waterway by the end of the century.

Under the second new pact,

The new treaty defining U.S. control expires Dec. 31, 1999.

It establishes the economic benefits that Panama would gain as a result of the canal operation. It also grants Panama full control of the Canal Zone within three years after the treaty is ratified and provides for the phasing out of the 14 U.S. military bases there.

Under the second new pact, Panama guarantees the neutrality of the canal, pledging it would remain open to ships of all flags. The Panamanians say the United States would keep the right to intervene if the canal were attacked by a foreign power.

Other terms provide a big increase in U.S. payments for use of the canal and provide Panama hundreds of millions of dollars in aid for the life of the agreement.

The President is organizing a large effort to sell the agreement to Congress and the public. He has ordered his top political aide, Hamilton Jordan, to head a team of planners on strategy. Jordan was a participant in the Cabinet Room there.

Panama radio reported that Carter would sign the treaty in Panama within two weeks and that Brig. Gen. Omar Torrijos, the Panamanian head of government, was inviting other Latin American leaders to the ceremony.

Powell said, however, that "there has been no decision on where the signing will take place."

The Senate must ratify the treaties by the approval of 67 senators, two-thirds of the body. The House of Representatives must pass enabling legislation to carry out the treaty, but only a simple majority vote is needed there.

Young Defends U.S. Stand On Human Rights

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad (AP) — Ambassador Andrew Young says it's more important to raise "a little hell" about governments that abuse human rights than to worry about encroaching on their national sovereignty.

Young today continues talks with Eric Williams, prime minister of the twin island nation of Trinidad and Tobago, before flying to Caracas, Venezuela, the seventh stop on his 12-day, 10-nation Caribbean tour.

The American U.N. ambassador defended the Carter administration's human rights initiatives at a televised panel discussion here Thursday night.

"There are some things that are more important than national sovereignty," Young said. "I don't mind raising a little hell about it (human rights abuse) and I think it's in the best interests of all mankind."

After a decade of "propping up dictatorships that were going to pull their citizens' fingernails out or hang them up by their heels and pour water down their nose, the people of the United States decided they did not want to be a part of that kind of inhumanity," he said.

As a result, Americans no longer wanted their government to trade with these countries or give them assistance, Young concluded. "They didn't want their money to be blood money as it had been in the past."

Comparing Carter's foreign policy with that of his predecessors, Young told his Trinidadian audience: "I would say the U.S. is beginning to pursue a more activist and preventive foreign policy rather than a crisis-centered foreign policy."

"We think it's much better to put together ideas about a region, listen to what people themselves have to say before there is a crisis rather than wait until the last minute when things begin to fall apart and run the risk of an emotional reaction to it," he said.

Lake Cities Oppose U.S. Water Lid

CLEVELAND (AP) — Officials from 10 cities bordering the Great Lakes agreed have agreed to press their congressional delegations to block a proposed federal restriction of national water usage.

The officials said the 15 percent restriction should not apply to water-rich Great Lakes states, although it would be beneficial in arid states which are experiencing water shortages.

Representatives from cities in New York, Wisconsin, Illinois and Minnesota agreed to lobby with their congressional delegations to block the proposal by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

Many officials said such a cutback would remove one of the area's best selling points in competition with Sun Belt states to attract industry.

Cleveland Mayor Ralph J. Perk said a cut in usage also would mean a cut in revenues at a time money is needed to improve water systems. Cleveland Utilities Director Raymond Kudukis has said water rates would have to be raised.

The EPA plan would bar federal aid for water and sewage treatment facilities if communities do not cut back water use.

President Silent In Probe Of Lance

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will continue to discuss official business with Budget Director Bert Lance, but he is withholding expressions of support for his longtime friend, whose personal finances are under federal investigation.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said Thursday that Carter wants to avoid influencing the investigation, being conducted by the comptroller of the currency.

Powell faced his first on-the-record, at-length questioning on the investigation at the daily White House news briefing and said in a carefully worded statement that Carter would withhold comment on Lance or the investigation.

In so doing, Powell left Lance without any statement of support from the person who could have been his strongest defender.

"It is our belief that the only appropriate course of action for us to follow while the inquiry is under way is to withhold any comment which could be construed as influencing the conclusion of that inquiry," Powell said.

The press secretary said he realized that the absence of comment on the case could be viewed several ways, presumably as a lack of support for Lance.

Powell also said Lance has made no direct or indirect offers to resign as OMB director.

Powell said Carter received a report on the investigation Thursday by Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, who asked for the session.

"It was our feeling that the President should be kept abreast in general terms ... but that he not become involved in the details or in any way attempt to direct the inquiry," Powell said.

The fact that the friendship is there, that the personal relationship is there, makes it particularly important that if we err we err on the side of caution," Powell said. "I know of no other course of action to take."

Powell said the two men would continue to discuss budget-related matters. "There is no alteration in relations or functions," the press secretary said.

"The President will continue to talk with Mr. Lance. In any situation where he needs to talk with Mr. Lance about Office of Management and Budget meetings, they will."

Powell said that when Carter appointed Lance to the budget job late last year, he was aware that Lance had outstanding loans. But Powell said he did not know when Carter became aware of the extent of the problems associated with the loans.

Nor could he say when Carter and Lance last met. The two often lunch together at least once a week.

Powell said that Lance helped set up a meeting between Carter and New York banking and business leaders in June 1975, which took place about the same time Lance negotiated a $2.8 million personal loan from Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co.

The loan is one of two at the center of the investigation being conducted by Comptroller of the Currency John Heimann.

Heimann's investigation is looking into any connection that loan and a $1.4 million loan from the First National Bank of Chicago may have had with dealings Lance's National Bank of Georgia had with the two banks.

Powell said the Carter meeting in New York, attended by several officials of Manufacturers Hanover, was held to acquaint the business leaders with the then little-known presidential candidate.

But Powell said the gathering had no connection with the loan and that the timing of the loan negotiations and the meeting was coincidental. He said the PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — A possible short circuit which could result in a fire has prompted General Motors Corp. to recall 3,100 1978 and 1977 model motor homes. A wire on the auxiliary power generator of the vehicles could come in contact with the positive battery terminal and starter solenoid post, causing the short circuit, GM said. Dealers would relocate the battery terminal and add a cover to the solenoid post at no charge to owners, the firm said. GM said no fires have been reported. The problem was discovered in company tests.

Seafarer Worries Milliken

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken is seeking new assurances from President Carter that Project Seafarer won't be constructed in Michigan without state approval.

"My basic objection remains," Milliken said Thursday in disclosing that he will ask Carter to officially confirm that the state has an effective veto over the proposed underground antenna system.

Although Milliken received a commitment by telephone in February that Seafarer would not be built in Michigan over state objections, the governor has not received requested written assurance.

Meantime, the U.S. Navy, which has proposed Seafarer as a means of keeping in contact with deeply submerged submarines, continues to talk about a site in the Upper Peninsula.

Recent statements by Navy and Defense Department officials would seem to contradict earlier promises that the state would have a veto, said top Milliken aide George Weeks.

Milliken would also like a further explanation of a smaller version of Seafarer being discussed by the Navy, Weeks said.

"The governor can't react to something that's so vaguely described, but he can reiterate his basic opposition to going forward with the Seafarer plan," Weeks said.

Milliken said he would send a letter to Carter seeking the veto assurance later this week.

South Haven Man, Cass Boy Drown

A 35-year-old South Haven man and a two-year-old rural Cassopolis boy drowned in unrelated accidents in southwestern Michigan last night and early today. State police at the South Haven post said James Lee Perry of 922 Chambers street is believed to have fallen from a boat into the Black river at the city's marina about 3 a.m. today.

Ryan Horan, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Horan of rural Cassopolis fell into a Diamond lake lagoon at the rear of his home about 6 last night, according to Cass county sheriff's marine deputies. The Perry drowning was the first for Van Buren county this year and the Horan drowning was the third for Cass county.

Board Ratifies Teacher Pact

BERRIEN SPRINGS — The Berrien Springs school board last night ratified a new three-year teachers' contract with the Berrien Springs Education Association.

Under the new contract, approved by the BSEA last week, teachers with a bachelor's degree will start at $9,100 per school year up to $14,037 after 13 years. The old range was $8,945 to $13,890.

Teachers holding master's degrees will begin at $9,650 up to $15,774 after 14 years. The old range was $9,800 to $15,300.

Also included in the contract is a provision for increased health and vision insurance, providing insurance premiums do not exceed the amount agreed upon. The salary schedule is renegotiable each year.

In other areas, the board denied a grievance submitted by Wallace Flower, high school math teacher. Flower was not scheduled to receive a salary increase for the 1977-78 school year due to administrative evaluations. He has requested an open hearing on the matter.

Berrien Springs schools will open their doors with half-day steel girders at the Ram-Sarko factory addition when he slipped and fell some 30 feet to the concrete floor below. He was employed by Tri-State Construction Co., Hartford.

Mr. Parmer was rushed to Memorial hospital, Sturgis, by ambulance. He died some 20 minutes after his arrival at 1:40 p.m., police said. Dr. Vincent Cabansag Jr., Sturgis, said Mr. Parmer died from massive head injuries.

Mr. Parmer was born March 15, 1940, in Cadillac, and attended Benton Harbor high school. He was a veteran of the Vietnam War, serving as a paratrooper. He was a member of St. Joseph Masonic Lodge No. 437, Scottish Rites and Saladin Shrine Temple.

Surviving are his widow, the former Donna Pool; four sons, Edward III, Tracy, Christopher and Curtis, and daughter, Lynn, all at home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Parmer Sr., Benton Harbor; two brothers, Lawrence of Niles and Gregory of Buchanan; two sisters, Mrs. Ralph (Charlene) Kline, Benton Harbor and Mrs. Carolyn Forkam, Buchanan.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Monday in the Fairplain Chapel, Florin funeral home, where friends may call after 7 p.m. Saturday. Burial will be in Crystal Springs cemetery, where the American Legion Post No. 105 will conduct military rites. St. Joseph Lodge Masonic Lodge No. 437, will conduct rites at the service in the funeral home.

Memorials may be made to Muscular Dystrophy or Saladin Shrine Foundation for Crippled Children.

Police said they did not learn of the Perry drowning until after they stopped a woman officers saw walking along M-140. The woman, who police identified as Tanya Fuller, 21, Covert, told officers that she was with Perry when he fell from the 21-foot-long boat moored in the city's marina on the Black river.

Miss Fuller said her cries for help went unheeded by other nearby boaters who apparently thought she was kidding, police said they were told. The body was recovered about 9:05 a.m. today in 15 feet of water by state police divers from the Brighton, Grand Haven, Lansing and Rockford posts.

Perry was pronounced dead at the scene by South Haven physician Dr. John Klever, a Van Buren county deputy medical examiner. Dr. Klever ordered an autopsy, police said. The body was taken to the Calvin funeral home in South Haven.

Maurice Parks, a Cass sheriff's marine deputy, said the Horan child drowned in about two feet of water in a Diamond lake lagoon next to the family's backyard. He said the boy's father was at work and the mother thought the youngster was in the house. It is believed the boy fell off the family pier about 6 p.m. and his body was seen by neighbor Gerald Jennings about 20 minutes later.

Four physicians at Lee Memorial hospital in Dowagiac worked for nearly an hour in efforts to revive the boy, Parks said. The boy was the couple's only child, he said.

YMCA To Launch 'Train Bed' Run Sunday In St. Joseph

The Twin Cities YMCA will sponsor a 10-mile "train bed" run Sunday starting at 10 a.m. at the fountain on Lake boulevard, St. Joseph. Dick Sharkey, YMCA physical director, said it's called "train bed" because most of the course will be along old railroad right-of-way. He said the course will be from Lake boulevard to Derby and returning as far as far as Vineland road where joggers will be picked up and returned to St. Joseph. There will be five age divisions from under 20 to 60 and over. Entry fee is 50 cents and light refreshments will be served along the route. First place awards will be presented in each division. Sharkey said as far as he knows this is the longest run ever sponsored by the YMCA.

most because their applications acknowledged they were younger than 65. Many appeared to be welfare recipients who thought they should have been included in the program, Wigent said.

"I think they feel there's one last grasp of hope, that the program may in fact be extended and that they may become part of the eligible group," Wigent said.

Surviving are three sons, Lyle, Philadelphia, Pa., Morris and William, both of Benton Harbor; two daughters, Mrs. Mildred Keller, Plainwell, Mrs. Elizabeth Gambel, Hagar Shores; two step sons, Eugene Murphy, Dowagiac, William, Niles; a step daughter, Mrs. John (Linda) Cheeseman, Nashville, Mich.; 18 grandchildren; 26 great-grandchildren; three sisters, Mrs. Neal (Gladys) Tice, Dowagiac, Mrs. Hazel Tessman, Winter Haven, Fla., Mrs. Helen Sundell, Largo, Fla.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Monday in Kerley and Starks funeral home, St. Joseph, where friends may call after 3 p.m. Saturday. Burial will be in Hamilton cemetery, Decatur.

Other senior citizens — perhaps as many as 2,000 — refused to indicate on the forms that they had unpaid bills, even though utility records listed them as owing money.

When clerks telephoned many of those to see why they hadn't checked a box indicating their bills were overdue, "they had the kind of attitude of, 'Hey, that's none of your business if I owe money, and I'm not going to tell you if I do,'" Wigent said.

Under the program, elderly who meet certain income requirements can get $50 from the state even if they've paid their utility bills religiously. If they have overdue accounts, the program will pay off up to $250 of those unpaid bills.

The board approved the purchase of two new station wagons and one sedan from low bidder Ned Gates Chevrolet for a total cost of $15,286. The vehicles will replace present autos that have logged over 70,000 miles each.

The board also approved replacement of a public address system in Mars elementary school; the widening of a road intersection at the middle school and Sylvester elementary; and the repaving of the circle drive at the high school, for a total cost of $7,267.

The board acknowledged the gift of six wooden benches and two trash receptacles presented by the middle school student council. The benches are to be placed at various spots on the middle school grounds.

Miners' Talks Are Hopeful

MARQUETTE, Mich. (AP) — Bargainers at Cleveland Cliffs Iron Co. said they moved closer to a settlement Thursday, but the 11-day-old strike by steelworkers in seven states continued. Some 3,500 Cleveland Cliffs workers and 1,300 workers at the White Pine Copper Co. in the Upper Peninsula have been among those on strike in local contract disputes since Aug. 1. Talks at Cleveland Cliffs on the issue of supplemental seniority were described as "constructive" by a company spokesman. The workers are staging the first major shutdown in 18 years in the basic steel industry.

Other senior citizens — perhaps as many as 2,000 — refused to indicate on the forms that they had unpaid bills, even though utility records listed them as owing money.

When clerks telephoned many of those to see why they hadn't checked a box indicating their bills were overdue, "they had the kind of attitude of, 'Hey, that's none of your business if I owe money, and I'm not going to tell you if I do,'" Wigent said.

Under the program, elderly who meet certain income requirements can get $50 from the state even if they've paid their utility bills religiously. If they have overdue accounts, the program will pay off up to $250 of those unpaid bills.

Motorist Reads Map; Robbed

NEW BUFFALO — State police here said a Delaware man reported he was beaten and robbed of about $2,000 in cash and valuables Wednesday night. Police said John Adamson, Wilmington, Del., told officers the incident occurred about 10 p.m. as he was stopped at the side of 1-94 looking at a highway map. He said two men in a car stopped behind him and came to the car. One brandished a handgun, he told troopers.

According to police, Adamson said he was struck with the gun after the two took his wallet, rings, watch and some clothing. He was released after treatment at St. Anthony's hospital, Michigan City, Ind. Troopers said the men were described as black and drove a white Lincoln Continental with Illinois license plates. Troopers said an investigation is continuing.

But whether he ever goes to trial will depend on whether the psychiatrists determining he is legally sane, or if, in Judge Brown's words, "lacks the capacity to understand the procedures against him or to assist his own defense."

Police revealed Thursday that Berkowitz told them that, when arrested Wednesday night, he had been on his way to the Riverdale section of the Bronx to wait for the voice to show him his victim.

And a far worse blood bath than any Son of Sam committed might have been imminent.

In Berkowitz' car, beside a semi-automatic weapon, was a letter to authorities of Suffolk County on Long Island, saying he was planning to "go out in a blaze of glory" by mowing down a crowd of young people in a discotheque.

The letter, signed "Son of Sam," warned the officials that they "would be all summer counting the bodies."

Power Outage Hits Cass Fair

CASSOPOLIS — A power outage short-circuited a portion of the livestock auction at the Cass county fair here last night, but officials did complete it after about a 15-minute delay.

The 279 animals auctioned off brought a total of $74,738.27, down from last year's record breaking figure of $78,481.11.

Fair Manager Duane Jackson said a power line feeding the fairgrounds broke about 7:45 p.m. and workers of Fruitbelt Electric Cooperative, restored power to the grounds about an hour later.

Prices per pound for all grand champion animals were down from last year's. The grand champion lamb went for $5.75 per pound compared to $11 a pound for last year's champ. The grand champion hog went for $1.95 a pound, down from $2.05 a pound last year.

The lamb of Joyce Seelye, of Marcellus, went to Howe Ford Sales, Dowagiac, for $598. Dennis Wooden's top hog sold for $399.75 to First Savings bank, Dowagiac. Wooden is from Cassopolis. Jessco, Inc., Dowagiac, paid $1,495.20 for the grand champion steer of Dan Wyant, Dowagiac.

The reserve grand champion lamb of Dan Wyant sold to Gooding Amusements Co., for $3.50 a pound. Gooding is concessionaire for the fair. That lamb and five others were resold with the $407.10 donated to the fair's livestock arena building fund.

Reserve champion hog, exhibited by Dennis Wooden, went for 90 cents a pound to John's bar, Cassopolis. Reserve champion steer, owned by Joyce Peterson, Niles, was sold to First National bank of Southwestern Michigan, Niles, for $1.05 a pound.

Average price paid per animal during the auction was $267.88. Last year just over 200 animals brought a price per animal of better than $300.

Rain and gray skies again yesterday dampened fair attendance, according to Jackson.

Buchanan Chapel To Honor Early Flyer

Jack Knight Memorial To Stand In City's Oakridge Cemetery

BY JOHN DYE

South Berrien Bureau

BUCHANAN — Officials here plan to begin construction next year on a memorial chapel in Buchanan's Oakridge cemetery to honor the late Jack Knight, a former city resident and pioneer aviator.

Joseph Bachman, public works superintendent for the city, said construction on the chapel, estimated to cost about $50,000, will begin this fall. Target date for completion is mid-May of 1978, he said.

Bachman heads up the Jack Knight Memorial Chapel committee, a group that has worked to honor the man who spent most of his youth in the community.

The 40 by 40-foot building will be constructed in a new section of the cemetery, located at the end of Polis street, Bachman said. It will serve as an all-denominational chapel for services at the cemetery, the former Buchanan mayor said.

Plans call for the structure to be built with wooden beams and stone, Bachman pointed out. It will also house cemetery offices and restrooms.

Bachman said the city commission has approved paying for construction costs with funds from the city's cemetery care fund. The Jack Knight committee is now seeking contributions in order to return the money to the fund, he added.

A plaque honoring Knight and his bust will be displayed outside the chapel for year-round viewing, Bachman added.

The man being honored by the city first gained fame as a pioneer air mail pilot, and later worked for United Air Lines.

Knight's full name was James Herbert Knight, but he was known in the aviation field as "Jack." In Buchanan, he was given the nickname "Sky."

A flying instructor with the Army Air Corps during World War I, Knight gained prominence when he participated in the first night airmail flight in aviation history in February of 1921.

In later years he worked for United Air Lines, retiring as a pilot in 1937 to become the firm's director of public education.

Knight was also involved in pioneer work in air-ground radios. In October of 1931, he held the then world's record of 12,000 hours in the air.

During World War II, he journeyed to South America to help obtain rubber needed in the war effort and contracted malaria. The affliction eventually led to his death on Feb. 24, 1945, at the age of 53.

True to his wishes, he was cremated and his ashes were scattered over Lake Michigan, from an airplane.

Antarctica Heat Wave

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Temperatures at an Australian scientific station in Antarctica early this month soared above the freezing point for first time in recorded history, scientists reported today.

T. J. Petry, an engineer with the Bureau of Meteorology's Antarctic division, said the heat wave peaked Aug. 2 when scientists at the Mawson station recorded a temperature of 42 degrees Fahrenheit.

education director. Photos of Knight were provided by United Air Lines.

Lake Level Drops Again

The level of Lake Michigan at the end of July was about 23 inches below a year ago, and about two inches below its long-term average level, according to a report by the Detroit district of U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The big lake's level was 578.55 feet above the mean water level at Father Point, Quebec, a sea level benchmark.

According to the Corps of Engineers report, Lake Michigan dropped one inch during the month of July. It was about 30 inches below the all-time high water point set in 1974, and about 31 inches above the all-time July low recorded in 1964.

For mariners, the end of July level was 21 inches above chart datum, a fixed low water reference plane.

The forecast shows that at the end of August, Lake Michigan will be about two inches below what it was at the end of July. The lake is expected to continue its seasonal decline into January. At the end of January 1978, the lake is expected to be ten inches below what it was at the same time in 1977. The January mean will be below the long-term average for that month and 31 inches below the all-time high mean for January, which was set in 1973.

JACK KNIGHT CHAPEL: Architect's drawing shows exterior view of Jack Knight Memorial chapel, to be built in Buchanan's Oakridge cemetery. Target date for completion is mid-May of next year, and city of officials hope to seek bids on project in near future. Chapel will honor the late Knight, who was a pioneer in aviation field and a boyhood Buchanan resident.

Trooper Says Man Kicked Him

NEW BUFFALO — State Trooper James Kroll reported he was kicked in the face by a man being held at the state police office here early today. Kroll sustained a cut lip, but did not require hospitalization, troopers said.

According to state police, the incident occurred about 1 a.m. after a man was taken into custody a short time earlier on US-12 near Grand Beach.

Booked at the Berrien county jail on three charges was Ronnie Pepple, 21, Michigan City, Ind. The charges included driving under the influence of intoxicants; possession of marijuana and resisting and obstructing police officers.

Kroll reported he was attempting to handcuff the man at the office when kicked. Troopers said a small amount of suspected marijuana was seized.

INTERIOR VIEW: Once completed, architect's sketch shows how interior of Jack Knight Memorial chapel will look. Chapel is to be constructed in new section of Oakridge cemetery in Buchanan.

Retarded School Is 'Blossomland Center'

BY SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Blossomland Learning Center is the name of the new Berrien county intermediate school district's facility which will consolidate programs for mentally impaired youngsters at Berrien Springs.

The intermediate board last night during a special meeting unanimously adopted the name for the $2.5 million center now under construction behind the intermediate headquarters.

The board during the same meeting also adopted the general operating and special education budgets for 1977-78 and granted property transfer requests for four parcels of property from the Buchanan to Berrien Springs school districts.

The suggestion of the name for the new school, previously unnamed but referred to as a developmental center, was made by board member Louis Densberg, of Buchanan. The name was not one of those which had previously been submitted to the board. These names included The Learning Tree, Wolf Prairie School, and Developmental Center of the Berrien County Intermediate School District.

Board President Lawrence Penchey said he liked the sound of the name the board adopted because it was short, and added: "People from the whole area can relate to that name." He noted the Berrien Intermediate district also includes parts of Cass and Van Buren counties, so the name 'Blossomland' was more appropriate than one containing the word 'Berrien.'

The general fund budget expenditures of $715,272, while the special education budget anticipates expenditures of $4,323,527. Districts comprising the intermediate district had previously approved the general budget, but they do not take action on the special education budget.

Major expenditures in the general budget include $161,631 for data processing, $149,581 for administration, $42,354 for printing and general items, and $46,476 for operation and maintenance.

The general budget is funded by state aid and .389 of a mill allocated to the district by the county tax allocation board.

SOUTH HAVEN

Progress Reported At Contract Talks

By TOM RENNER
South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — South Haven city officials reported progress was made yesterday in negotiations over a new contract with the Independent Municipal Employees union of South Haven.

The old contract expired April 15 and employees staged a one-week-long strike in July when negotiations bogged down. The employees returned to work after city officials refused to negotiate until the strike ended.

City Manager Paul Sharon reported last night that negotiators "mutually agreed upon" a new classification system for visually impaired, and $839,700 for special education programs not included in those already mentioned. The budget also includes $370,000 for the Blossomland Learning Center.

Transfer requests were granted for property in Oronoko township owned by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Read, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Wilds, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Webb, and Eleanor Morlock. The Webbs and Wilds each have one child attending school, the Morlock property is vacant, and the Read's do not have any children.

The properties, east of Red Bud trail and south of Grange road, are contiguous to the Berrien Springs district and just inside the Buchanan district boundary.

In approving the transfers, board Vice President Adrian VanGinhoven noted that all are closer to Berrien Springs schools and would be better suited for transportation there. Also, the business and social interests of the Wilds and Webbs, the only parties who testified, are in Berrien Springs, he added.

Berrien Springs schools did not object to the transfers, and Buchanan schools took no position in a letter to the intermediate board.

Voting for the transfers were Peachey, VanGinhoven, and Mrs. Sharon Kalling. Member Ben Nye dissented, saying he felt the state board of education would overturn the transfers. Densberg abstained, saying he was a resident of the Buchanan district.

Buchanan schools now have until Aug. 22, the date the transfers go into effect, to appeal the intermediate board's decision.

Buddy Bell's Blast Rings Chicago's Bell

CHICAGO (AP) — Buddy Bell smashed a two-run homer and Rick Waits hurled the Cleveland Indians to a 3-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox Thursday night.

Cleveland scored an unearned run in the second inning. Andre Thornton reached when right fielder Wayne Nordhagen dropped his fly ball for an error. Two outs later, Thornton scored on a single by Paul Dade.

Frank Duffy opened the Cleveland third with a double and scored on Bell's ninth homer of the season off loser Ken Kravec, 7-4.

Waits, 6-4, limited the Sox to three hits until the ninth as the Indians swept the two-game series. Jim Kern earned his 14th save.

Two of the Chicago hits were by Jorge Orta, who beat out a bunt in the fourth and an infield chopper in the sixth.

The Sox were shut out until the ninth when Ritchie Zisk singled for his second hit of the game. He moved to second on Bruce Bochte's throwing error and scored on Chet Lemon's single.

Chicago remains only team in the majors not to be blanked this season elsewhere in the American League. Thursday night, Minnesota trimmed Toronto 7-3, and Texas battered Kansas City 8-3. The heat goes on for Bobby Bonds, the hottest American League hitter this side of Rod Carew.

Bonds, who has been on a tear since the start of August, did a one-man job on Boston Thursday night, driving in four runs—two of them with his 29th home run of the season—as California ended the Red Sox' 11-game winning streak.

The loss was particularly damaging because Baltimore and New York, both pursuing the Red Sox in the American League East race, both won.

The Orioles came from behind with three runs in the ninth inning to defeat Seattle 4-3 and the Yankees used the two-hit pitching of Mike Torrez to blank Oakland 3-0.

The second-place Orioles moved within 1½ games of the top while third-place New York closed its deficit to four games.

Bonds' homer tied him with Boston's Jim Rice for the American League lead and his four RBIs gave him 82 for the season. He has hit safely in 10 straight games and has eight homers and 19 RBIs in his last nine games.

Don Baylor also hit his 17th homer for California and Paul Hartzell survived a shaky start to post a seven-hitter.

Lee May's two-run, two-out single capped a comeback rally for Baltimore which was trailing by two runs in the ninth against Seattle starter Glenn Abbott.

With one out in the ninth, Abbott walked pinch-hitter Pat Kelly and Enrique Ramey relieved for the Mariners. Tony Muser's sacrifice fly made it 3-2 and then Ken Singleton stroked a double for his third hit of the night. That set the stage for Torrez's winning hit.

Torrez allowed only two singles and retired 11 straight.

Oakland hitters over one stretch as New York tagged the A's with their 13th consecutive loss. It was the fourth straight complete game for the rugged right-hander, who ran his record for the season to 12-10 and 9-9 with the Yankees since he was acquired from Oakland.

All three New York runs were scored after errors by second baseman Marty Perez, who went to the A's in the deal for Torrez.

Dave Goltz won his fifth straight game and 15th of the season, pitching Minnesota past Toronto.

Lyman Bostock and Glenn Adams each tagged two-run homers for the second-place Twins, who closed in on the division-leading White Sox.

Carew had two hits in five trips for Minnesota and kept his major league-leading batting average at .383.

Doyle Alexander and Roger Morel combined for a two-hitter as Texas moved past Kansas City into third place in the American League West. The Rangers, who have won 26 of their last 33 games, now trail first-place Chicago by just two games.

Mike Hargrove and Claudell Washington both belted two-run homers for Texas and Jim Sundberg drove in two runs with a double.

Ruling Hits State Board

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The head of the Michigan High School Athletic Association says he expects little change in prep sports following an attorney general's ruling that the association cannot regulate them.

"I don't know what the ramifications are," said Allen Bush, executive director of the MHSAA. He said the association's lawyer will examine the opinion, but indicated he anticipated only minor changes in the group's operation.

Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley overturned Thursday the state's attempt to delegate regulation of high school athletics to the MHSAA.

But Kelley said school districts can be members of the MHSAA, voluntarily adopt its rules, use its officials and take part in statewide tournaments as they have in the past. He said the association cannot enforce those rules. That is up to each local board of education separately because interscholastic athletics are part of the school's governmental function.

Kelley said part of last year's revision of the state school code, which transferred authority over prep sports from the state Board of Education to the association, was improper.

Kelley made the ruling in response to an inquiry from state Superintendent of Public Instruction John Porter. Porter asked about the validity of three sections of the 1978 school code which grants authority over interscholastic athletics to the association.

The Michigan Supreme Court has ruled that governmental powers can't be conferred upon a private person or body, Kelley said. The MHSAA is a private, nonprofit corporation.

Littler Leading PGA

By One Stroke

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Tom Watson, caught in the middle of the Great Golf Club Controversy, literally has a mixed bag in the 59th PGA Championship.

The 27-year-old Watson could have been excused if the events of this week had bugged his mind and caused him to lose confidence. But he no fear.

Watson, winner of five tournaments this year including the Masters and British Open, lost his clubs en route to Pebble Beach when he flew one way and his bag went another. When the clubs arrived, they were declared illegal because the grooves on the face of the irons did not meet U.S. Golf Association specifications.

He messaged home to Kansas City for an older set, one with which he won the 1975 British Open. He looked at them and figured he had better find a backup set in case they also were ruled illegal.

Watson sent an SOS to fellow pros for another set of irons. Roger Maltbie responded with an extra set he carried in the back of his car—a Silver Sent model that were at least 25 years old.

Fortunately, for him, the set was available; Watson's own second set was disqualified.

So, using Maltbie's irons, fellow pro Leonard Thompson's sand wedge and his own driver, No. 2 and No. 3 woods and putter—and with only eight practice swings, Watson fired a 68 Thursday over the tamed Pebble Beach Golf Links. And he was only one stroke off the lead held by veteran Gene Littler, at 75.

At least eight other players had clubs disqualified.

Maltbie shot a 70 over the 8,000-yard, par 72 course.

Jerry McGee, winner in Philadelphia two weeks ago, played with Watson and also fired a 68, as did Mark Hayes, winner of the Tournament Players Championship at J.I. Clarksville, Fla., in March.

Jack Nicklaus, a five-time winner at Pebble Beach who was edged by Watson in the Masters and British Open, carded a 68, along with Lanny Wadkins and George Cade.

The parched Pebble Beach course, site of the Bing Crosby Pro-Am each January, proved hazardous for many in the field of 140, even though 28 golfers managed to shoot par or better. However, 27 had scores of 80 or over, with Gary Campbell at the bottom of the field with a 94.

Among some of the better known players, Johnny Miller shot 70, Lee Trevino a 71, Arnold Palmer a 72, Huble Green a 74 and defending champion Dave Stockton a 75.

Danny Edwards was at par going into the treacherous No. 14, and six-putted, while Dennis Cusack was one under par going into 18 and took a 10. Birdshing at 78.

Rose Reaches Hit Milestone In Win

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
Pete Rose has been around baseball so long that his numbers are really beginning to pile up.

One of the important numbers is 38. That's his age. Another is 2,900. That's his base hit total.

"I proved that when you turn 38 and take care of yourself, you can still play," the Cincinnati third baseman said Thursday night after his milestone hit helped the Reds beat the Los Angeles Dodgers, 3-4.

Rose's 2,900th hit was a double in the fifth inning. Only 18 players in major league history have more hits than Cincinnati's switch-hitting infielder.

In other National League games, the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Montreal Expos 10-5; the Houston Astros edged the San Francisco Giants 7-5; the Pittsburgh Pirates wallop the New York Mets 9-1 and the San Diego Padres nipped the Atlanta Braves 2-1.

Rose's double eventually led to Cincinnati's winning run. He scored on a single by Joe Morgan to give the Reds a 3-1 lead and help Tom Seaver withstand a late Dodger assault.

Bake McBride drove in three runs and belted his ninth homer of the season and pitcher Jim Kaat had three hits as Philadelphia defeated Montreal for its eighth consecutive victory.

Kaat, who had two doubles, lasted only until the sixth. But he had enough of a lead at that juncture to improve his record to 9-7. The victory increased the first-place Phillies' margin over the Chicago Cubs to three games in the National League East.

Kaat, baseball's winningest active pitcher with 232 victories, gave up 11 hits.

Cesar Cedeno smashed three doubles and drove in three runs, helping Houston beat San Francisco. Cedeno's first double, a two-run shot in the fifth, tied the score 4-4 and his RBI double in the seventh keyed a three-run rally that put Houston ahead 5-4.

Terry Puhl's lead-off single started the Astros' winning rally off loser Gary Lavelle in the seventh. Enos Cabell, who had three singles and scored three times, forced Puhl. Then Cedeno's double made it 5-3.

Bill Robinson drove in four runs and Orelle Jones pitched a five-hitter to lead Pittsburgh over New York. The Pirates pounded 15 hits and drew seven walks, including nine hits in the first 4 1-3 innings off losing pitcher Pat Zachry.

"It was embarrassing," said New York Manager Joe Torre, who had a closed-door meeting with his players, apparently to read them the riot act.

Torre, however, did single out Zachry for a performance above and beyond the call of duty.

"Zachry gave me everything he has," the Met manager said. "He's going to make a heck of a pitcher."

Pat Scanlon drew a two-hut, bases-loaded walk in the bottom of the ninth to cap a two-run rally that boosted San Diego over Atlanta.

Countdown Beginning For 1977 Prep Grid Season

The countdown for the 1977 high school football season will start Monday with the start of formal drills.

Prep football candidates will start their required week of no-pads workouts Monday and then go into contact work the following Monday.

The drills are in preparation for the start of actual competition on Friday, Sept. 9, the earliest start for prep in years.

Expansion of the Michigan high school playoffs to eight teams in each of the four enrollment classes has added another week to the campaign and advanced the start of play one week.

Quarterfinals in the state tournament will be held Nov. 12, semifinals Nov. 19 and the finals Nov. 26.

Only five new area coaches will be making their debut on Monday. They are Tony Yonto, Gallien; Jim Carey, Lawrence; Doug Borsari, Watervliet; Gail Persons, Lawton; and Blaine Douglas, Bloomingdale.

Niles is the lone area school district still threatened by the loss

GOLF

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. — Gene Littler shot a five-under-par 67 to take a one-stroke lead over Tom Watson, Jerry McGee and Mark Hayes in the first round of the PGA National Championship.

Watson had to borrow a set of irons from Roger Maltbie—a set with which he never had before played—only 30 minutes before tee time after two sets of his clubs were declared illegal.

HAUPPAUGE, N.Y. — Mary Mills, who has not won a Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament since 1973, shot a four-under-par 68 to take the first-round lead in the $10,000 Long Island Charity Classic.

The 37-year-old native of Laurel, Miss., opened with a 37 as a result of bogey on the par-three 175-yard second hole, but came back in 31 on the par-72, 6,321-yard course at the Colonia Hills Golf Club.

CINCINNATI — Beth Daniel, the 1975 champion, won a pair of matches and led the charge into the semifinals of the 77th National Women's Amateur Golf Championship at Cincinnati Country Club.

The 5-foot-10 Furman University senior from Charleston, S.C., beat Mildred Stanley of Long Beach, Calif., 3-and-2 and slipped by Julie Greene of Barrington, R.I., 2-and-1 in the quarter-finals.

Miss Daniel will meet 24-year-old Nancy Hager Hamner of Dallas in today's semifinals.

TENNIS

INDIANAPOLIS — Third-seeded Laura DuPont advanced to the semifinals in the U.S. Clay Courts tennis tournament before a series of downpours delayed competition by more than three hours.

Miss DuPont rallied in the second set to spoil veteran Maria Bueno's hopes in women's singles 5-7, 6-4, 6-2.

Six-time champion Nancy Richey also reached the semis, along with Iris Ridell of West Germany and Cynthia Doerner of Australia.

Rain delayed most of the men's singles action. In the only match completed, 11th-seeded Balazs Taroczy upset third-ranked Jaime Fillol of Chile 6-1, 6-2.

YACHTING

NEWPORT, R.I. — The heavily-favored 12-meter yacht Australia overcame a false start and beat France 1 by 5 minutes, 33 seconds over a 24.1-mile America's Cup course in the first day of semifinals for foreign challengers.

It was the worst defeat this year for the French challenger, which has lost by margins ranging as high as 4:24 in the earlier series.

In the other semifinal, Sweden's Sverige, skippered by Pelle Petterson, defeated Gretel II, the 1976 challenger from Australia, by 2:07, in a series that will help determine the challenger to one of three American yachts.

Fayette Hosts 'A' Tournament

NILES — Defending Class A state champion Fayette Bar of Niles will host the 'A' state fast-pitch softball tournament beginning Friday at Plym Park here.

The eight-team, double-elimination tourney opens with a pair of games Friday night. Grand Rapids Steelecase faces Andrus of Ludington at 7:30 p.m. and Topper's of Kalamazoo at 9 p.m.

HARD TO SIGN: New Orleans Jazz basketball star Pete Maravich clowns as he attempts to sign his contract with pen in teeth and smiles at right during a press conference Thursday afternoon. Maravich, who had been negotiating since season end, signed a $3 million five year contract. That breaks down to $600,000 per year, enough to make anyone smile. (AP Wirephoto)

Maravich Inks $3 Million Pact With New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — All-star guard Pete Maravich has signed a five-year, $3-million contract with the New Orleans Jazz, but said the money was not big a factor in his deciding to sign.

A source close to the negotiations confirmed that Maravich's annual salary is to be $600,000-plus, which would probably make him the second-highest paycheck in the National Basketball Association. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar reportedly makes about $650,000 a year, and the source said Maravich will not make quite that much.

Although Maravich still had a year to go on his $170,000 contract with the Jazz, he said he would retire if his contract were not renegotiated.

"It wasn't all monetary," he said after huddling with team management to sign the contract at one end of a riverfront restaurant. "I spent a great part of my life in Louisiana. It's only natural for me to want to live in this town. I cannot see any other place that compares with New Orleans. It's one heck of a town. That was the main part of it."

Another thing stressed by Maravich during last season was his desire to see the team trade for some front-line help. He said his one remaining goal in basketball was to win an NBA championship.

Wednesday, the Jazz signed Leonard "Truck" Robinson, a board-crashing free agent late of the Atlanta Hawks.

"The Jazz has never had a real big power forward, and he'll add a great deal more offensive strength and help on the boards," said Maravich.

"I still don't believe, myself, that we're in the category with Portland and Philadelphia, though."

Douglas is actually returning as head coach at Bloomingdale after an one year absence. He coached the Cardinals during the 1973, 74 and 75 seasons. Ted Peak is back at Edwardsburg after the Edges were unable to find a replacement for him.

Last year there were a total of seven new coaches in southwestern Michigan.

Jerry Burchett's resignation last month brought an end to his reign as the area's doyen of coaches. Burchett spent 15 seasons as Watervliet's head coach. The area coach with the longest tenure is Decatur's Don Raferink, who will be starting his 14th season with the Raiders.

In changes in area conferences, the Big Seven is now the Big Eight with the addition of Kalamazoo Central as a full-fledged member. Also, Allegan has officially dropped out of the Allegan-Ottawa league.

No football unless a millage proposal is passed. Niles coach Neil McLaughlin says the squad will start workouts Monday while awaiting outcome of the vote on Sept. 8. The Vikings have only had one school cancel a scheduled game so far—Battle Creek Lakeview.

Defending area league champions are Muskegon in the Lake Michigan Athletic Conference; Berrien Springs in the Red Arrow; Kalamazoo Lucy Norrix in the Big Seven; Brandywine and Lakeshore (co-champs) in the Blossomland; Marcellus in the Southwestern Athletic Conference; South Haven and Plainwell (co-champs) in the Wolverine; Galesburg-Angus in the Kalamazoo Valley and Saugatuck in the Allegan-Ottawa.

No area team went undefeated last season for the third consecutive year. South Haven, Berrien Springs and Hartford all tied for the area's top record last fall at 8-1. Bangor was the lone area team to go winless last year although the Vikings did manage a tie. No area club made the final Associated Press Top 10 rankings in any class last year.

Larry Bodtke of Bloomingdale won the area scoring crown last year with 96 points. He has graduated but Tony Harris, the second-top area scorer with 92 points, will return at Brandywine.

Tom Jager of Lakeshore, Duane Toney of Hartford and Tim Sunday of Berrien Springs were area grididers who won AP all-state honors last fall. All have graduated.

Most area teams will open the new season Sept. 9, including St. Joseph and Lakeshore in their annual neighborhood grudge match. The game will be played at St. Joe. Benton Harbor travels to Kalamazoo Central in another Friday night opener.

On Saturday, Sept. 10, Lake Michigan Catholic will trek to Coloma and Michigamme Lutheran will entertain Bridgeman.

On Sept. 16 Covert will play its first game on its new field by hosting Grand Rapids Faith Christian.

Lions Obtain Oakland's Hubbard

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The Detroit Lions have moved to beef up their backfield and kicking game with two player acquisitions.

Veteran fullback Marv Hubbard was picked up from the waiver list of the Oakland Raiders in a straight cash deal. The 31-year-old Hubbard played seven seasons in Oakland, but missed last year's drive to the Super Bowl because of shoulder surgery.

Hubbard has appeared in three Pro Bowls and was a 1,000-yard rusher in 1972.

"We remember him as a fine fullback, and if he's the same, he can help us," said Lions General Manager Russ Thomas. "He'll make a contribution is he's like he was, and we'd like to give him a chance."

At 6-foot-1, 235 pounds, Hubbard may be the man to offset the loss of big fullback Lawrence Gaines, who has been sidelined by knee surgery.

A product of Colgate, Hubbard is second only to O.J. Simpson in career yardage among active American Conference rushers with 4,394 yards. He has 23 career touch-downs.

Hubbard still must pass the Lions' physical exam.

With Benny Ricardo out for the season due to a shoulder injury, the only active kicker on the Lions' roster had been Bob Wood, a rookie from Michigan.

Chiefs Face Tough Test

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

"We are going to get better from here because we have better personnel than ever before," Kansas City Coach Paul Wiggin said recently.

Perhaps he should have added, "because we can't get any worse."

His Chiefs, still looking for their first point of the 1977 National Football League exhibition season, meet the Pittsburgh Steelers Saturday night in Arrowhead Stadium. Kansas City's pre-season opener last Saturday night was a wash-out ... or perhaps more accurately a wash-in ... with the Detroit Lions blanking them 17-0 in the bubble-topped Silverdome.

Wiggin was at a loss to find something to "praise," but he finally managed to laud the defense, saying it "turned in a pretty good effort." That defense will have to do more than pretty good this time. The Steelers showed last weekend they were closing in on mid-season form quickly, beating Buffalo 28-24.

In Saturday night's other pre-season games, it will be Philadelphia at Los Angeles, Dallas at Seattle, Detroit at Buffalo, Tampa Bay at Cincinnati, Chicago at Oakland, the New York Jets at Atlanta, Washington at Miami, San Francisco at San Diego; the New York Giants at New Orleans, St. Louis at Denver, New England vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee, and Cleveland at Minnesota. On Sunday Baltimore is at Houston.

Title Game At Hartford

HARTFORD — A minor league title game is scheduled for tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Hartford baseball tournament. Brandywine will play the winner of the 6 p.m. match between Hager and Paw Paw for the championship.

In major action, Brandywine and South Haven American meet at 6 p.m. with the winner in the finals and Decatur and Hartford play at 8 p.m. for fourth place.

Physicals Set

LAWRENCE — Physicals for Lawrence athletes, male and female, will be held Saturday, Aug. 13, from 9 to 11 a.m. at the Lawrence elementary school. The exams are for students in grades 7-12. Cost is $5.

State Colleges Asking More Student Loan Funds

By LARRY McDERMOTT
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Legislative leaders are being asked to look into the state's pocketbook again this fall and find more money for hardpressed college students who need loans. Soaring tuition fees are closing the doors of higher education to poor and middle-income people who are finding the state's loan program doesn't have enough money to go around, Democratic Rep. Jackie Vaughn of Detroit told his House Colleges and Universities Committee on Thursday.

Education officials have defended tuition hikes, saying inflation and inadequate state funding are the causes. They urged Vaughn's committee to seek more money for the loan program.

Vaughn said he already has asked House Speaker Bobby Crim and Senator Majority Leader William Faust to give "this crisis" top priority when the legislature convenes next month.

The legislature decided earlier this summer to increase the loan program from $12 million to $27 million. The original bill by Sen. Gary Corbin, D-Clio, sought $30 million. The guaranteed loans go to eligible students who are unable to secure loans from private sources. The maximum loan for an academic year is $2,500 at 7 per cent.

The legislature has provided $547.7 million for four-year colleges and universities to operate the next term — an 11.2 per cent increase. Most of the institutions have hiked tuition rates in varying amounts. The highest is a 14.1 per cent boost for some students at Wayne State University, while the lowest increase was 5.5 per cent at Ferris State College. Michigan Tech and Oakland University also are considering tuition increases. Only Western Michigan University doesn't plan one.

Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Auburn, told other committee members the University of Michigan now has the highest tuition rates in the Big Ten. The reason, he added, is that the school offers high quality education. "But that's of small consolation to those who want to attend but can't afford it," Bullard noted.

(Obviously, this excludes Northwestern University, the only private school in the Big Ten and the one that has by far the highest tuition rates.)

Community colleges, which have been considered an alternative for those who can't afford the tuition at larger schools, also are becoming expensive. "The gap between the cost of attending a state college and a community college is closing," said Edward Breun, director of research at Macomb County Community College.

Breun urged the committee to seek more grant money, fewer loans and obtain more aid for part-time students. He also said more money is needed for women who are separated but not divorced. State and federal regulations require that aid to these women be based on their husband's income. A Department of Education official said the state has failed to fully inform high school counselors and the public of all available loans and grants.

Hoosiers Bid Low On LMC Work

The Wright Construction Co. of Elkhart, Ind., was the apparent low bidder over three Michigan firms for the second phase of construction work on the $8.5 million community center at Lake Michigan College.

The bidding results were revealed at the LMC board meeting last night.

The Elkhart firm submitted a bid of $274,602 for work which includes raising the site elevation with compacted-engineer fill, excavating for concrete footings and erecting structural steel.

The bids from Michigan firms were: $278,700 from Pearson Construction, Benton Harbor; $290,834 from Holland Construction, St. Joseph; and $316,900 from Miller-Davis Co., Kalamazoo.

The LMC board voted to award the contract to Wright, provided that the architect further investigates the firm and make a satisfactory report on its background and financial ability to complete the job. Some board members said they had never heard of the firm.

Ken Fitzgerald, project engineer for the Holmes-Black architectural firm of Lansing, said the investigation would probably be completed today.

He said he had done some checking yesterday afternoon and the Wright firm appeared to be fully capable of completing the job.

Fitzgerald said federal Economic Development Administration regulations required that the contract be awarded to the lowest qualified bidder. Construction of the building is being partially financed with a $5 million EDA grant. The remaining $3.5 million will come from a bond issue approved in February.

EDA regulations also require that 90 per cent of all construction workers be hired locally in the Twin Cities area. Fitzgerald said the Wright firm had indicated it would hire about 20 workers locally for the project estimated to last 180 days.

The community center — which includes a 2,050-seat auditorium, a 900-seat theater, 2,000-seat convention center and offices, rehearsal and conference rooms — is being built in six phases.

The first phase is nearing completion, according to Fitzgerald. It involved two separate projects.

One was preliminary site work done by George Miller & Sons, St. Joseph, for $53,707. The other involves installation of roads, parking and underground utilities, and is being done by Pearson Construction at a cost of $156,000.

Fitzgerald said these phases still to be bid:

- Phase 3: foundations and structural steel for the theater.
- Phase 4: mechanical equipment such as boilers and air conditioning.

- Phase 5: walls, roof and windows.
- Phase 6: interior.

Fitzgerald said the project is being bid in phases because there was not enough time to complete the final architectural plans after the EDA awarded the $5 million to LMC. The EDA required that construction begin within 90 days so the phases are being being bid as the plans are completed, Fitzgerald said.

The building is to be completed by the fall of 1979. The new structure will be located directly east of the present building on the Napier Avenue campus.

In other areas, the board voted to rejoin three different community college organizations which LMC dropped out of last year as a cost-cutting measure.

Annual dues of $4,852 were approved for the Michigan Community College Association; $720 for American Association of Junior and Community Colleges; and $600 for the Community Colleges Trustees association.

Vance Begins London Talks On Rhodesia

LONDON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance today begins talks with British and South African officials and a leading Rhodesian black nationalist in an effort to shape a new U.S.-British plan to transfer power to the black majority in Rhodesia.

Vance was turning his attention to Africa after a nearly two-week-long Middle East peace mission.

Work on the Rhodesian proposal gets under way with a private meeting between Vance and British Foreign Secretary David Owen to flesh out the U.S.-British initiative and to discuss ways of enlisted support for it from black and white African leaders.

Natural Resources Panel To Study Area Concerns

BY MIKE WYNGARDEN
Staff Writer

Sand mining, shore erosion and the preservation of the Grand Mere area were Berrien County environmental problems brought before the Michigan Natural Resources Commission (NRC) yesterday at its meeting at the St. Joseph Holiday Inn.

The NRC is holding its monthly meeting at the St. Joseph Holiday Inn as part of its plan to hold meetings across the state.

"We began holding meetings at different locations across the state to hear different environmental problems that face each area," Joan Wolfe, NRC chairman, of Belding, said at the conclusion of yesterday's meeting. "We certainly have heard a lot of problems today we were not aware of before."

NRC members took no action yesterday on the environmental questions raised by local residents, but promised that the Michigan Natural Resources Commission (NRC) would look into each problem and report back at its next monthly meeting.

Today, the NRC is scheduled to take action on a number of statewide environmental issues, including a proposed $3.5 million settlement with seven major corporations for violating state and federal water pollution standards. The corporations involved, including the Ford Motor Company and Detroit Edison, are charged with failing to comply with the new federal pollution standards by the July 1 deadline.

Mrs. Asselin said the Army Corps of Engineers had filed plans with the DNR to deposit sand at three sites along the shoreline to stop erosion — one just south of the St. Joseph river harbor, one off the Hawthrone-Lakeshore drive intersection, and one off the Wissing lane-Lakeshore drive intersection.

She said the Army Corps had trouble getting right-of-way for the Hawthrone Avenue feeder beach project so they decided to use the sand for that project on the Wissing Lane project.

POLICE ROUNDUP

Man Is Accused Of Beating His Mother

A man accused of beating his mother with his fists in her Fairplain home early Thursday morning was arrested in Kalamazoo later in the day and turned over to custody of St. Joseph township police.

Township police said they obtained a warrant charging Frank M. Coburn Jr., 24 of 433 Brownway, Fairplain, with assault and battery upon his mother, Mrs. Margaret Jarvis, 45, of the same address. Police said Coburn was apprehended shortly after 8 p.m. by Kalamazoo police. Township police after getting custody booked Coburn at the Berrien County jail.

According to officers,

Mrs. Jarvis reported at 12:30 a.m. Thursday a man struck her face with his fists, causing cuts and bruises and then fled on foot before police arrived.

Mrs. Jarvis did not require treatment for her injuries, officers said.

Frank Lahr, also a member of the Grand Mere association, complained to the DNR for enforcing new state act governing off-the-road vehicles. He said the act has reduced the number of off-the-road vehicle violations at Grand Mere from 95 each weekend down to three Twin Cities area police reported thefts totaling $1,681 Thursday.

Thefts reported by Benton Harbor police included:

UMBRELLA MONTH: His destination was only a few feet away, but J. Ken Keefer needed an umbrella to enter Farmers and Merchants National bank, Benton Harbor, Thursday as heavy rains drenched southwestern Michigan. Keefer is F&M board chairman. Steady rains have given August title of "wet month." But skies cleared today and Weather Service promised a pleasant weekend. (Staff photo)

Pay Raise Okayed For LMC Officials

Lake Michigan college board of trustees last night approved a $1,000 pay raise for President James Lehman that puts his salary at $42,500 for 1977-78. Lehman is starting the second year of a three-year contract. However, Lehman's raise was lower than pay hikes that were granted earlier for other LMC administrators. These ranged from $3,750 to $1,050. Last year Lehman was given a $4,900 raise.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Market Declines Broadly

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined broadly today in the aftermath of Thursday's drop.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials gave up more than 2 points in early trading.

Advances outnumbered declines by a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the market was still feeling the effects of the latest Federal Reserve moves to tighten credit.

With short term interest rates rising, speculation mounted that the Fed might soon raise its discount rate—the charge it makes on loans to its member commercial banks.

Today's early prices included International Business Machines, off 5% at 285½; General Telephone, down 3¢ at 32½, and NL Industries, ½ lower at 19¾.

On Thursday the Dow-Jones Industrial average fell 9.61 to 877.43, wiping out Wednesday's 7.82-point gain and reaching a new 19-month low.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a 4-3 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume reached 21.74 million shares, up from 18.28 million on Wednesday.

The NYSE's composite index lost .32 to 53.77.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .21 at 120.80.

NEW LOW: The stock market plummeted to a new 19-month low Thursday amid further signs that the Federal Reserve was encouraging short-term interest rates to rise. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 8.61 to 877.43, wiping out Wednesday's 7.82-point gain. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Bank Gets Court Okay For Branch

BENZONIA, Mich. (AP) — A federal judge has upheld a decision by the comptroller of the currency to allow Michigan National Bank of Grand Traverse to establish a branch office in the Benzie County village of Benzonia.

The July 27 decision by Judge Joseph Whited, released Wednesday, dismissed a suit brought by the Central State Bank here against the comptroller in an effort to stop Michigan National's expansion plans.

The suit charged that Michigan National of Grand Traverse is in fact a branch of the Michigan National Bank of Lansing, which is more than 25 miles from Benzonia. Michigan law permits the establishment of a branch no further than 25 miles from the parent bank.

New Squawk: Olds Engine In Cadillacs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — First it was Chevy engines in Oldsmobiles. Now it's Oldsmobile engines in Cadillacs. At least that's the claim of a Cadillac Seville owner here who has filed suit in Circuit Court charging that Cadillac attempted to deceive customers by using Oldsmobile engine blocks in its Sevilles.

Richard B. Sughero of suburban Ballwin seeks damages on behalf of all buyers in Missouri of 1977 Sevilles who believed they were getting Cadillac engines. Sughero bought a new Seville last April. Since then, his attorney contends, Sughero and other buyers have experienced trouble with the hybrid engine.

Missouri Atty. Gen. John D. Ashcroft in May obtained an injunction against General Motors that provided relief for buyers of Oldsmobile cars equipped with Chevrolet engines. However, a spokesman for Ashcroft said no consumer-protection action was planned for the Cadillac buyers.

The spokesman said the Oldsmobile engine block was extensively modified for the Cadillac Seville and could not be called a substitute engine. He said he was not aware of any false Cadillac advertising. Named as defendants in Sughero's class-action suit were an area Cadillac dealership and General Motors Corp., which manufactures the car.

The news conference was held by association co-chairmen Robert Smith, Robert Thompson and Frank McKay, and Charles Bezata, secretary of the association.

The association is claiming that property assessments made last summer were improper and that too many protesting property owners never got the opportunity to appeal the assessments to the township's board of review.

To avoid a five-year delay in getting their complaints to the state's tax tribunal, the group took their case to Cass county circuit court.

In a decision handed down last week, St. Joseph County Circuit Court Judge Robert Boyle said the court had no jurisdiction in the matter. Judge Boyle was sitting in for Cass Circuit Court Judge James Hoff who had disqualified himself.

The association's co-chairmen said yesterday they will recommend to members that an emergency hearing before the tribunal be sought, and if that fails, to appeal the decision by Judge Boyle.

The association leaders said that to be forced to wait for five years for a tax tribunal hearing is a violation of constitutional rights guaranteeing a speedy hearing on complaints.

Richard F. Pannone, general sales manager, formerly managed sales of the company's Castings group. He now heads up sales of the Castings group and the Fabricated Products group. He attended Jackson Community College and Michigan State University, and joined Hayes-Albion in July, 1960.

Ernest N. Ryssy is now manager of the Brake Systems Marketing, advanced from sales manager for the company's Brake Systems Marketing division in Jackson.

John V. Motto, formerly manager of the Brake Systems division, has assumed the dual responsibility of advertising manager and marketing manager. He graduated from General Motors Institute in 1948 and joined Hayes-Albion in August, 1970.

Hayes-Albion Lists Management Moves

JACKSON — Charles E. Drury, chairman and president of Hayes-Albion corporation, has announced certain management changes effective August 1, the beginning of the company's 1978 fiscal year. John Whiting, vice president, has been elected an assistant secretary and will be actively involved in corporate administration. He attended Jackson Community College and Michigan State University, and joined Hayes-Albion in July, 1960.

The suit charged that Michigan National of Grand Traverse is in fact a branch of the Michigan National Bank of Lansing, which is more than 25 miles from Benzonia. Michigan law permits the establishment of a branch no further than 25 miles from the parent bank.

Dow Suspends DBCP Sales

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — Dow Chemical Co. has suspended production and sale of an anti-worm chemical which the firm says might cause male sterility. Dow identified the substance as dibromochloropropane (DBCP), a bromine derivative marketed under the trade name Furazone. A medical review and testing of Furazone began several weeks ago after questions were raised about products of a Lathrop, Calif. chemical company, a Dow spokesman said. "There have been no definitive results as yet," the spokesman said. The Dow Furazone is produced only at its Magnolia, Ark. plant, where about 40 workers and others who may have come in contact with the product are being examined

Tomato Prices

Lower

Tomato juices again on the Benton Harbor Fruit market Thursday.

Bidding for most items was slowed by morning rains. Few commodities received higher prices than the day before in spite of an additional 10 day buyers on yesterday's market.

Size continued to be the determining factor on peaches. Thursday's peach volume increased slightly with most brought to market in unclassified bushels.

Plums continued to sell well as the volume doubled from Wednesday.

Airport Decides Not To Buy Two Lots

By LARRY MacINTYRE
Staff Writer

The Twin Cities airport board decided yesterday not to purchase two lots that are offered for sale on the south side of the airport.

An appraisal report indicated the asking price of $117,000 was too high, and board members sold they did not want to acquire any more land until a new master plan for development of the airport is completed sometime next year.

The lots, which contain approximately 84,000 square feet, almost two acres, were offered to the airport by Tate real estate, Coloma; according to Lee Schiek, airport manager. The property fronts on Territorial road and is adjacent to Ross field.

A vacant gas station and separate garage buildings are on one of the lots at 1201 Territorial. The Better Burger drive-in restaurant is on the other lot at 1205 Territorial.

The drive-in is operating and pays $100 a month rent, Schiek said. The lots combined have about 400 feet of frontage on Territorial and are just east of the airport entrance.

Board member Gerald Heppner said St. Joseph city Assessor Dick Kiesel had investigated the offer and determined the price of $117,000 was too high. Heppner is city manager of St. Joseph.

Schick said the same parcels were offered to the airport two years ago at a price of $175,000, or $88,000 more than the latest offer.

In other areas yesterday, the board voted to purchase a Case tractor with front-end loader for $8,700 from Tractorland Sales, Eau Claire.

It was the second lowest qualified bid, according to Schiek. A bid $200 lower came from the A.H. Choitz Co., South Bend, for a John Deere machine.

Board members said the price difference was small enough to justify keeping their business in Michigan.

They also noted that the Case model came with a three-point hitch while the Deere machine did not.

The board decided to seek an opinion from its attorney, Arthur G. Preston Jr., St. Joseph, on whether a Ross field zoning board should be re-established to deal with future zoning problems such as construction of high towers or buildings nearby.

Board Chairman John Banyon said the previous zoning board had not met in over four years and could be considered disbanded.

'Swimmer's Itch' Growing Problem In Michigan

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan lawmakers have appropriated $16,000 of taxpayers' money for research on swimmer's itch.

That sounds fishy unless you're a resort owner or have ever suffered from the itch. Then it's no laughing matter.

Michigan water quality officials have treated inland lakes with copper sulfate for 30 years to fight the itch. A bad case can send a swimmer to the hospital.

But the problem is spreading as more lakes become algae- and weed-choked. Officials say they've heard more than 50 complaints of swimmer's itch so far this summer — double last summer's total.

"At least 500 lakes in Michigan have trouble with swimmer's itch," says Dr. Harvey Blankspoor, a Hope College biologist who studies the pesky problem that's unique to the Midwest and Ontario.

Department of Natural Resources officials say there's no way to get rid of the itch permanently. The parasitic blood flukes that trigger it are carried by birds and snails.

The symptoms are easily spotted. A swimmer emerging from an infested lake develops red welts — sometimes as big as quarters — within 15 minutes to 24 hours.

The welts itch intensely for 7 to 10 days. Scratching won't spread it but may cause scars. Some people get only a few welts. Others get hundreds.

"If you were to get 200 to 300 welts all over your body, it could literally drive you out of your mind," says another DNR official. "Sometimes people must be hospitalized and put on tranquilizers."

The best way to avoid swimmer's itch is to rub down with a towel right after leaving the water, experts say. But sometimes even that doesn't work.

"It's a painful thing and it's also very embarrassing," says Charles Newhouse, a realtor on badly infested Gun Lake in Barry County. "You have company come over and they go home and find they've got swimmer's itch and they say, 'Hey, we don't want to go over to that lake anymore.'"

This summer, 702 Gun Lake vacationers and resort owners petitioned the DNR for help. They say the itch is caused by geese flying over the lake as part of a DNR goose management program.

Blankspoor has studied 10,000 snails and about 50 geese from Gun Lake but isn't sure they're the problem. The $15,000 will let him study it another year.

The problem begins with bird droppings infested with the blood parasite. The droppings contain eggs that hatch, sending parasites into the lakes to breed inside snails. The offspring search for food, their natural hosts, or people. They die under a person's skin but leave the welt.

The problem apparently is here to stay. But it could be eased by either destroying the snails where the parasites breed or keeping infested birds away from susceptible lakes.

Since 1947, copper sulfate has been used to try to kill the snails. But it must be applied annually and carefully since too much may kill fish.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Fidel Castro, in a gesture that could lead to improved U.S.-Cuban relations, is ready in less than about 80 American citizens living in his country leave with their Cuban families.

But the Cuban leader rejected a U.S. request, conveyed by Sen. Frank Church, for the release of seven Americans serving lengthy prison terms on charges of espionage and counter-revolutionary activities.

Church returned home Thursday from a four-day visit that included a cross-country tour of the Cuban countryside, offshore spear fishing and hours of talk with Castro.

The Idaho Democrat said Castro had "asked for nothing" in response to his agreement to let the Cuban families leave, but the move "put the ball back into the American court."

It is obvious that he would expect the United States to respond in some way," Church said on the return flight to Washington.

He clearly hopes that relations with the United States will continue to improve. Certainly he looks toward the day that the U.S. trade embargo is lifted and full diplomatic relations are restored.

Church appeared disappointed at Castro's refusal to take action on behalf of the prisoners, serving terms that range from 20 to 30 years.

Saying the Cuban leader "gave me his reasons," Church furnished few details of their discussion.

"He asked me, 'Should we talk about four hijackers and three CIA agents, or about 100 Americans who can now bring their families to the United States?'" Church said.

The Americans with Cuban families, believed to number 80, have been free to leave, but they have been unable previously to gain Cuban permission to take their families along.

Church quoted Castro as saying he had not expected the matter to be raised, but since it was, he regarded it as "a humanitarian question in which he was very sensitive and he was prepared to see that this problem is remedied."

The only individuals who may face trouble leaving, Church said, are youths serving mandatory military enlistments.

Church appeared impressed with Castro, who led his guest on a two-day blitz tour with stops at a museum that once was the villa of the late author Ernest Hemingway, housing developments, schools, youth camps and cattle-breeding and citrus farms and the Bay of Pigs.

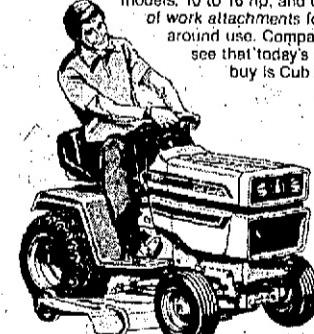

"He wanted me to see what he's done," Church said. "He has more facts and figures in his head than anyone I ever

"Aguaruma."

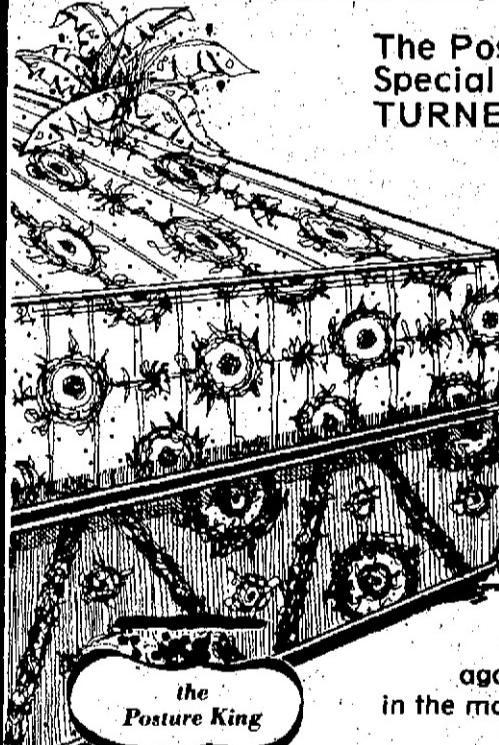

Castro himself proved to be very adept with the speargun and killed a number of fish, members of the entourage said later.

Church said the Cuban leader was aware of his role not only as member of the Senate Foreign Relations committee but also as chairman of the panel that exposed numerous abuses by U.S. intelligence agencies, including a three-year CIA plot to kill the Cuban leader.
